Two story frame house built in 1912 in a Neo-Classical style for Jacob Spencer, owner of the Spencer Iron Works. Irregular house shape with combination gable and hip roof plan. The prominent feature of the house is the southwest corner which on the house is treated as a polygonal tower rising to a peaked roof and around which is a round curved two story porch supported on continuous fluted wood columns with Tuscan capitals. Square porch balusters. Across the rest of the facade the second story is open with pedestals of the porch balustrade above the porch entry at the first story. Prominent gable dormer with centered window bay and a chamfer shaped second story oriel window. Palladian style window at the first story with an entry flanked by sidelights and with transom.

Two story frame house built ca. 1895 in the Queen Anne style for Fred Binz partner in the St. Joseph Sausage Works. Irregular plan house with a prominent facade wing. Gable roof plan. The wing has a shingled pediment and is chamfer shaped beneath the moulded cornice. Broad pendant decorated soffit brackets. Between the first and second storys is a broad string course of imbricated shingle work. Unusual is the lack of window openings in the front facet of the wing at either story. Beneath the windows at the chamfer is a strong course of the same pattern of shingle work. The entry is at the reentrant angle with a porch dating to ca. 1905 filling the corner supported on slender wood columns with Tuscan capitals.

Two story brick house built in 1889 in the Queen Anne style for the widow of William Zimmendorf the owner of a pharmacy. Basic rectangle shape with a truncated hip roof. Corbeled brick cornice. There are three symmetrical facade bays with the first and third slightly projected from the facade and the center brick paneled and corbeled at the second story above the principal entry at the first story. The full porch supported on round wood columns with Tuscan capitals dates to the turn of the century. In 1939 the house was extensively remodeled and the door and second story windows altered--a rear addition greatly added to the size of the building.

Two story frame house built in 1899 in the Queen Anne style for Thomas Hickey a retired businessman and remodeled extensively in 1915 by H.S.Forgrave a physician in a Elizabethan Revival style. The endgable house is covered with a slate roof. There is a massive brick chimney rising from the gable end with the characteristic paired flues of the style. Overhanging eaves with exposed decorative cut purlins in the gable ends. The whole of the house is covered with stucco and extensive use of false half-timbering is made throughout. There is a projecting gabled oriel on the facade with diamond paned leaded glass gable window. A triple window oriel is found at the second story at the northeast corner. The house entry is covered with a door hood with jerkinhead gable roof supported on carved brackets.

1923 Clay street

Two story brick dwelling built in 1900 in a Colonial Revival style for David Bartlett partner in the Bartlett Bros. real estate and investment company. Rectangle shape with truncated hip roof. Buff colored brick construction. Dentiled cornice with exceptionally broad frieze and moulded architrave supported on square engaged columns frameing the three primary bays of the facade. The columns have moulded capitals and rest on engaged brick plinths on level with the corbeled brick water table. At the second story the first and third bays are paired windows with nine over one light sash. At the first story are Palladian style window openings with ball finials rising from the corners, moulded drip cap and pilastered surround. The stone sill has stone lugs. The principal feature of the facade is the widely projected gable roof porch with dentiled pediment and plaster floreate motif tympanum. The frieze and architrave are on level with that of the house itself. The porch is supported on fluted wood columns with Ionic capitals. The floor of the porch is brick and concrete with stone capped edge. Behind the porch at the second story is a paired consoled balcony with turned spindle balustrade. Ovoid Ocule with radiating voissours flank the two openings centered over the balcony. Below at the first story is a fanciful entry with segment shape with a fan shaped transom of wood within which is set a radiating light transom. Pilastered surround with broad sidelights. On either side elevation are single story porches with round columns support and turned balusters. Surrounding the estate is a brick and decorative iron fence. Attached to the house is a two story brick garage and servants room built in 1912.

Two stage house. The early section consists of the primary house mass built ca. 1880 in the Italianate style. Brick constructed with five symmetrical facade bays at either story with labeled projected lintels with inscribed keystones. The house shape was rectangle with a rear ell. There is a paired bracket cornice and broad frieze. In 1908 W.B. Norris, a lawyer, remodeled the house and raised the roof to its present endgable shape adding a longer frame rear ell. A shallow rectangle oriel was added to the east elevation and the porch across the facade supported on round columns with Tuscan capitals was added.

Two story brick dwelling built ca, 1885 in the Queen Anne style by A.A. McIntosh but lived in for many years by Jacob Ford, President of the First National Bank of Buchanan County. Unusual facade with three different projecting gabled wings . At the southeast corner is the first with two bays and a tall peaked gable roof. Elaborate decorated frieze found in all three gables. Triangular shaped labeled lintels with triangular shaped wood incised panel above the window sash. Finial rises from a keystone above each window. The center bay projects slightly beyond the first with a single window at the second story and the principal entry below. This wing has a paneled brick pilaster rising to the heavily moulded and modillioned cornice with returns in each gable. The southwest corner is projected out from the middle bay with two window bays. The southeast corner of the house is chamfer shaped as well. The porch fills the facade supported on fluted wood columns with Ionic capitals resting on stone piers with turned balusters in the porch balustrade. Projected gable pediment decorated with plaster swags over the porch entry. Porte Cochere at the west elevation. A major addition was made to the rear of the house in 1929. The gable roof frame constructed carriage house with shingle decorated gable was added to the propertgy in 1906.

Two and one half story brick dwelling built in 1889 by Samuel Nave the owner of one of the largest of the wholesale dry goods companies in St. Joseph. Designed by the architectural firm of Eckel and Mann in a Romanesque Revival style. Red clay tile roof on the asymmetrically shaped house with combination gable and hip roof plan. Extensive use of decorative pressed brick and terra cotta decoration. The principal entry is on the south elevation over which is a projected gable dormer with centered Palladian style window and a butt shingle tympanum resting on broad corner consoles. The house cornice is corbeled with pressed brick. Most window openings have raised terra cotta surrounds with keystone. Centered beneath the gable dormer is a large fanciful terra cotta cartouche in turn centered above the broad gable roof of the porch. Butt shingle face with a wood segmental shaped centerpiece. Projected eaves with exposed rafter ends. The porch is supported on brick corners with round columns flanking the entry with Byzantine motif capitals. Red sandstone steps to the porch. To either side of the single leaf entry are panels with polychrome tile ahistorical motifs. On the south elevation the second of the two bays [the first being the entry described] has a second story balcony with decorative wrought iron balustrade supported on paneled consoles. Below is a broad window opening whose surround is decorative terra-cotta work. The corner of the house is treated as a round engaged tower with two window bays at either story joined with a raised terra cotta surround. On the east elevation is a tile roofed Porte Cochere with open spindle frieze and curvate brackets. First story recessed porch under a segmental shaped arch. At the second story is a three bay recessed porch with Romanesque arched loggia. Above on the roof face is a curvate eyebrow window. On the west elevation the tall and exceptionally well executed stair landing stained glass windows are visible.
Behind the house Nave built a carriage house and hired man quarters in 1894. Two story brick with gable roof.
