ATTACHMENT:

Has iron balconies on the front and west side of the structure. Partial arches and the windows on the west side and front and some windows are recessed more prominent arches making the recess.

Studco has been added to the lower front.

The Kage House is an example of the mix of time, improper preservation techniques, and adaptive re-use. Built between the years 1858 and 1883, the structure was purchased by Frederick A. Kage from Charles and Walbunger Fuerth on June 28, 1886 for $1,332.00. The cellar, converted to a concrete basement was originally solid rock and poplar beams. The exterior of the building has been sandblasted and quarry tiles added to a frontal entry way. New windows, arches and entry door are evident.

HISTORY AND SIGNIFICANCE:

In 1927, with plans well underway for a new Mississippi River bridge connecting, at long last, Cape Girardeau to Southern Illinois, a group of local investors met and conceived the idea of a grand new hotel. They were convinced of the profitability of their scheme for two major reasons: First, Cape Girardeau's elegant old hotel, The Riverview, had been destroyed by fire some years earlier leaving the city and surrounding areas without a center for social and business activities and without adequate facilities for travelers; second, they believed a large influx of travelers would result from the new bridge and that these people would stop in Cape Girardeau if facilities were available.

The Cape Girardeau Hotel Co., with C.L. Harrison as president, was formed as a result of this meeting and Boatmen's Bank of St. Louis retained to act as trustee. Six percent first (closed) Mortgage Serial Real Estate Gold Bonds were sold to raise the necessary capital. Although most of the money was, eventually, raised locally, advertising for the bonds was statewide and included the following "Description of Security":

. . . 82 guest rooms, 66 with private baths, steel, concrete and brick construction--fireproof. Architectural design--Mission type with matt brick exterior. Two high speed elevators, a modern fireproof garage of brick and concrete designed for 40 cars maximum. 90 feet on Broadway by 226 feet deep.

Value = Land	$ 40,000
Buildings	232,000
Furnishings	50,000
TOTAL	$322,000

The Spanish style hotel was designed by Walter P. Manske and George Bartling of the architectural firm, Manske and Bartling Inc. of St. Louis. The supervising engineer was R.K. Knox and the structural engineer was W.W. Huff. A Cape Girardeau contractor, A.H. Gerhardt, constructed the building using local labor and, when available, locally obtained materials. The hotel was named Marquette after the famed river explorer Jacques Marquette due to the obvious connection of the building to the Mississippi River. A replica of the Marquette family crest was designed by the architect and installed over the main doorway.

Construction of the original buiding and a parking garage to the north began late in the summer of 1927, and a "gala grand opening" held on November 17, 1928, shortly after complication. Although completion was planned to coincide with the opening of the new Mississippi River bridge (Sept. 3, 1928), construction was delayed due to an extremely wet winter. Heavy rains not only delayed work on the hotel, but the freshly poured foundation filled with water, crumbled, and had to be repoured. Management of the hotel was turned over to Interstate Hotels, Inc. during construction.

"The Hotel opening was a gala occasion", according to the Southeast Missourian, with some . . . "8000 residents of Cape Girardeau and vicinity" attending:

Thousands of persons lined the downtown streets an hour before the scheduled opening. The Drum and Bugle Corps of the Louis K. Juden Post of American Legion headed by Drum Major Dr. J.H. Ruff, paraded up and down Broadway and carried a large sign which announced that the group would open the structure at 8 o'clock. In the meantime the members of the Municipal Band struck up a lively tune from the corner of Broadway and Fountain . . .

The hotel building was made more impressive by night under the glow of four high-powered flood-lights, which illuminated the entire structure. From the windows beamed hundreds of lights and the two towers of the building were well lighted.

The guests were routed through the coffee shop, kitchen, dining hall (ball room), lobby, and to the third floor by the elevators, from which they returned by the mezzanine floor and out through the lobby. The building was packed with the crowds until after midnight, the 'Collegians' playing for a dance which started in the dining halls at 9 o'clock and continued until midnight.

. . . The bell boys and waitresses were dressed in Spanish costumes and attracted much attention.

The Marquette, almost immediately, became the center of social life in Cape Girardeau and maintained this position until the 1960's. Weddings, receptions, and parties for every occasion were held in the ballroom which was also the site for civic club meetings and conventions. KFVS, for many years Cape Girardeau's only radio station, began broadcasting from a glass walled studio on the west side of the mezzanine overlooking the lobby when the hotel opened. The Hirsh brothers, owner, operators, and announcers, interviewed celebrities, both local and visiting, acted as a vehicle for local musical talent, announced and broadcast sporting events, read local and national news reports and weather, and "spun" the latest "hit" records. Area residents recall the Marquette lobby as constantly filled to capacity with area residents observing the KFVS broadcast, cheering and wagering on their favorite ball team, and singing along to their favorite tunes. The coffee shop and restaurant were also popular meeting places and for many years, due to a series of excellent chefs, were the "best" places to dine in town.

The Cape Girardeau Hotel Co. was hard hit by the depression and forced to sell the Marquette, in the early 1930's, to the Berberich Hotel chain at "a great loss". The Berberich chain, owned by William Berberich of St. Louis owned a number of hotels including the Governor Hotel in Jefferson City. Following the purchase, Berberich advertised the Marquette as a "sister hotel to the Governor".

In January, 1936, Berberich announced plans for a "40 room annex" to the Marquette. The addition would cost $70,000 and be constructed over the present coffee shop . . . built to the six-story height of the remainder of the structure". Construction of the addition began about March 1, and was completed October 8, 1936.

The Berberich chain continued to operate the Marquette very profitably until the late 1950's and early 1960's. By that time, a number of motels had been established on major highways leading into the city. Although these new motels were not as grand as the Marquette they were clean, moderately priced, and conveniently located for motorists.

The Marquette was sold, again at a great loss, to Mr. and Mrs. Thad Bullock of Cape Girardeau, in December, 1969. The selling price was $150,000. The Bullocks continued operating the hotel and lived there with their family, in rooms on the mezzanine, from 1969 to 1975. Bullock also opened a piano salon, on the southwest corner, in 1969. The piano salon has continued in operation to the present.

The Marquette Hotel was closed on July 1, 1971, by order of the Missouri Division of Health for violation of the state statutes on hotel and tourist camp regulations. The hotel was found to have inadequate fire escapes, fire extinguishers, lighting, and plumbing. There were nine names on the guest register at the time it was closed. The hotel is currently for sale by owner.

EXTERIOR DESCRIPTION:

The original exterior appearance of the Marquette Hotel is, except for a 1936 addition (described below), unchanged. The building is rectangular, 82'10" x 137'11" with partial basement. The main portion of the building is six-stories, 90', and originally contained 82 guest rooms. A one-story section, 41' x 40'; at the Northwest corner of the building originally housed a coffee shop and a larger one-story section at the Northeast corner, 16' x 77'7", was a ballroom.

The foundation is constructed of steel reinforced concrete with 9" thick walls and spread footings. All floors and roof are reinforced concrete with both vertical and horizontal reinforcement. Walls, first through sixth stories, are 12" thick with horizontal, 18", and vertical, 12", steel reinforcement interspaced with gypsum blocks. The two towers have double brick walls, 5" thick.

Street facing, South and West, exterior walls are faced with buff colored, wire cut brick laid in stretcher bond. Rear walls, North and East, are of red brick laid in flemish bond. Decorative brickwork, in which the brick is slightly outset in relief to form a diamond pattern, occurs on the towers, the frieze and above the main doors facing Broadway.

First story windows and doors, South and West facades, are contained within large semi-elliptical arches with ornate, glazed terra cotta surrounds. Decorative panels, 3' tall, of glazed terra cotta stippled to look like pink granite occur between the arches at street level. Panels of verde antique smooth polished stone occur under windows within the arched surrounds. Two of these panels and most of the windows are now covered with corrugated sheet metal on the South facade. A double leaf, single panel door with single pane side lights is centered on both facades. Remaining doors are single leaf, one panel, one facing South and thru West. The focus of the first floor facades are the large steel canopies, "marquises", which extend out over the sidewalk above the double doors on both facades and are original to the building. Large floodlights within these canopies originally illuminated the entire facade. "Hotel Marquette" in neon lights occurs on each side of both canopies and was a later addition.

Most second story windows are steel framed, two sash or thru sash casement with mullions and a terra cotta lugsill. Exceptions are the steel framed casement double semi-circular arched windows located above the two steel canopies. A decorative terra cotta panel occurs within each arch and both are capped with double arch radiating voussoirs of an edge brick with a double brick keystone. Both windows rest on a decorative glazed terra cotta panel. Above the double arched windows on the South facade is a large coat of arms of glazed terra cotta. It is composed of a shield with three azure fleurs-de-lis on a white background below which, on a banner of azure, are three gold medalions. The coat of arms rests on an elaborate belt course of glazed terra cotta which caps the entire second-story.

The third, fourth, fifth, and sixth-stories have steel framed two or three sash casement windows with mullions and a terra cotta lugsill. Glazed terra cotta quoins decorate the corners of these upper-stories.

The roof trim consists of a frieze of decorative brickwork (described above) with an architrane and cornice of ornate, glazed terra cotta. Above the entablature is a balustrade which encloses the roof and consists of large viola shaped, glazed terra cotta balusters and top and bottom railings. Red clay half-round pipe is stacked horizontally between the balusters for a highly decorative overall effect.

The Broadway and Fountain facades are enhanced by two Spanish style towers, 16'7" square, which rise a full story from the roofline on the southeast and southwest corners of the building. Each tower features decorative brickwork (described above) and double semi-circular arched doorways on all four sides with a glazed terra cotta pillar dividing the arches. A decorative black wrought iron railing partially encloses the street facing doors; other doors open onto the roof. Both towers are topped by low hipped roofs supported by plain wood brackets. Roofing material is red clay tile.

The flat hotel roof is steel reinforced concrete covered with "a cement topping poured in one piece without seams and is very smooth in appearance". The roof was originally the site of a roof-top garden which offered a splendid view of the Mississippi River. The garden no longer exists, however, and the river view has been obstructed by a multi-story building to the east. The "cement topping" has been covered over with asphalt and gravel. Access to the roof is by an enclosed stairway centered in the building.

A one-story parking garage is attached to the north wall of the hotel. Design, construction methods and materials used were nearly identical to the hotel. The garage is 89' x 83'6" x 10' with 12" thick steel reinforced walls. The roof is constructed with 14" I beams 18" apart and was apparently designed to support additional stories. The west facade is consumed by 3 large semi-elliptical arches with concrete surrounds. A single wood pedestrian door is centered in the center archway. The other two contain wood slide-by doors. Two, 8 over 8, steel framed fixed windows occur on the north and south facades. Exterior walls are faced with buff colored, wire cut brick laid in stretcher bond.

ADDITION:

In 1936, the original architect, Walter P. Manske, was retained to design and construct a five-story addition to the Marquette. The addition, 41' x 40', contained 40 guest rooms and was constructed above the coffee shop on the northwest corner of the hotel. Design, construction methods, and materials were identical to the original building so that a uniform facade could be maintained.

PRESENT CONDITION:

The Marquette is, basically, in sound structural condition with most problems caused by lack of maintenance. The first floor was totally remodeled in 1954-1955, and remaining furniture and fixtures are of that vintage. The first floor contains a bar, ballroom, lobby, coffee shop, kitchen, two exterior fire escapes, one interior stairwell, two elevators, and a piano salon on the southwest corner--all but the piano salon has been closed for a number of years. Major damage has been caused to the walls of the lobby by a roof leak which occurs where the one-story ballroom joins the main building. The roof has been leaking in this area for a number of years and there is a virtual stream of water flowing across the lobby during heavy rain. All of the first floor rooms are, literally filled with trash and a fifteen-year accumulation of dirt.

Floors two through six contain 122 guest rooms, 97 with full baths. The remaining rooms each have a sink and share light common baths. Room size averages 10' x 15'. Floor by floor Carrier heating and air conditioning units were installed in 1955, however, these have not been maintained and are no longer functional. Condition of the rooms is fair in general. Most of the guest rooms still contain the original, 1928, furnishings including twin or full beds, dressers, desks, chairs, all of a Spanish design and constructed of oak. Many rooms contain the original ceiling fans with globe lights. The original ceramic tile baths are also in good condition. Major problems are due to lack of maintenance. All of the rooms are extremely dirty and piled with trash.

The exterior of the building is in good condition except for lack of maintenance. Brickwork and mortar are sound but need cleaning. Windows are intact but need painting and washing. Terra cotta trim is deteriorating in some areas and also needs to be cleaned.

42. (Continued) Modern brick porch has been added to front. Glass enclosed porch.

ATTACHMENT:

South side; front porch altered, now glassed in to make sunroom; air conditioning unit behind low privacy fencing.

North side; evidence of structure; being removed; small white addition (one storey) is allegedly original structure and the large brick structure was added later, however, this may be doubtful.

Deck added to east side of wooden structure.

CAPE GIRARDEAU - founded in 1793 by Don Louis Lorimier - French Canadian. Spanish land grant.

COUTHOUSE & PARK -

Lorimier gave 4 acres of land and paid $200.00 cash and furnished one man for 30 days to clear one acre for seat of justice.

- 1805 - Court of General Quarters Session and Peace organized. Lorimier became a citizen and was made one of seven judges. Governor established permanent seat of justice.
- 1806 - Court appointed commissioners to lay out town. Botany (now North Main) south to Fortune (William) Water Street west to Honor (Middle). Also named committee to let contract for creation of a jail and courthouse. Jail was completed in December but contractor became insolvent and the courthouse was not erected.
- 1811 - Meetings of court were held in log building at the southeast corner of Themis and Middle Streets.
- 1812 - Lorimier died. A great fire burned on site which he had given for seat of justice. His funeral was one of the most impressive ceremonials held in the new territory; Indians came and paid last tribute at sundown, according to tribal rites. The pipe of peace was smoked.
- 1813 - Common pleas court was abolished and Circuit Court established in Jackson.
- 1851 - Common Pleas Courthouse built on site of proposed first courthouse established in 1806. Completed on June 12, 1854.
- 1861-64 - During the Civil War the building was used as a headquarters by provost marshal and there plans for Cape Girardeau's 4 land forts were approved by General U. S. Grant. Signals of flags were hoisted and lowered to communicate with the forts in the city. It was in this period that a young man, a guerilla, was led from the jail, placed on a wagon, made to sit on his coffin, taken out Themis Street and hanged.
- 1870 - Bonfires were built on Courthouse grounds for a beacon as the steamers Robert E. Lee and Natchez can around the bend in famous race from New Orleans to St. Louis.
- 1888 - Courthouse remodeled by adding wings, portico elevating roof building cupola. (Cupola was from old St. Charles Hotel built in 1838). It was an attractive object and widely known to the numerous travelers by boat in early days.
- 1902 - Courthouse was used for classes when college burned.
- 1909 - The old Farmers Market House (built in 1852) and the old jail (1858) were removed to be replaced by a statue-foundation to be erected by Women's Relief Corps in memory of Civil War soldiers. It was dedicated in 1911.
- President Taft visited the city. Crowds awaited his arrival in Courthouse Park.
- 1912 - Mass meeting held in Common Pleas Courtroom in memory of Don Louis Lorimier: 100th anniversary of his death. It was suggested by citizens that the block on Broadway between Spanish and Lorimier be purchased and added to the Courthouse Park

- 1913 - Band stand erected.
- 1920 - Franklin Delanor Roosevelt, candidate for vice-president, addressed crowds in Courthouse Park. Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt accompanied him.
- 1922 - Public library was formally opened.
- 1938 - Sundial in Courthouse Park in memory of F.D. Batjer is dedicated.
- 1941 - Courthouse was traded to U. S. Government for new post office site. Matter went into litigation when heirs contended the park was deeded for public purposes.
- 1957 - Courthouse deeded back to city by U.S. Government.
- 1958 - Remodeled by Mayor Walter H. Ford

ATTACHMENT: This is very similar to 31 Lorimier-probably same builder or architect-with a few changes:

Same plan shape outside end chimney, shed dormer in center, porch of same semi-elliptical shape, but goes around to north side of home. Pilasters on porch are same as 31 but of rough stone as is foundation and porch. Windows on facade-2 large windows with 2 rows of square shaped small panes on top-one on each side of door. Shed dormer has large rectangular window with small panes and 2 sidelights. House has new siding except on back where there is original weatherboarding or clapboard. On top of porch pilasters, same 4 brackets for decoration as on 31 S. Lorimier. Side porch on north has been enclosed. All windows 2 sash on sides except for 2 casement windows on front south side.

ATTACHMENT: The establishment of one of Cape Girardeau's foremost industries, one that has been crucial to the growth, development, and very character of the city began in the fall of 1906. Cape Girardeau was in need of additional industry due to the loss of the Frisco shops and terminal business which has been moved to Chaffee, Missouri so the announcement that Roberts, Johnson, and Rand would visit the city came at an auspicious time. This shoe company was known to be in a period of great expansion and was looking for a location for a large factory.

At a meeting of the Commercial Club (forerunner of the Chamber of Commerce) on the night of September 18, 1906, president David A. Glenn called a special meeting for the following Wednesday in order that members might confer with Roberts, Johnson, and Rand who were arriving that day. J.C. Roberts, Jackson Johnson, and Frank Rand told that meeting that they were seeking a "location for eight hundred persons." They expressed their concern that this large a number of workers would not be available as everyone in town already had a job. But, the meeting ended with the trio promising to "make a definite proposition later."

On October 30, a meeting was held to meet Frank Anderson, industrial agent for the Frisco. Anderson told the group that the Frisco was pushing the Cape Girardeau location because "the shoe company has established several factories ATTACHMENT: outside St. Louis, but none on the Frisco lines and the road believes it should be favored this time." Anderson also said that the shoe company wanted to locate in Cape Girardeau "if the city can make arrangements to support it." He said. "Quincey, Mt. Vernon, and Washington, Missouri wanted the factory and that Quincy had raised a bonus of $100,000 and Washington $60,000."

Time was of the essence Anderson explained, the shoe company was determined to have a site "within the next two weeks so it can get started upon building the plant. It is necessary to have it running next year for the fall business." The company preferred the Cape location because of its "proximity to St. Louis (lack of) labor problems, and the social status of the city."

Roberts, Johnson, and Rand arrived in Cape Girardeau on November 13, 1906, to investigate several possible sites for the factory and to meet with the Commercial Club. But, it was not until several days later, on November 19, that a definite offer was made by the officers of the shoe company. If the city could provide the $60,000 necessary to build the plant and the site they had selected, "between the water and laight plant and the Morrison ice plant in the north end of the city," the company agreed to "establish a shoe factory and disburse $2,000,000 in wages in 12 years." The secretary of the Commercial Club announced at this time that a number of lots had been secured in the north end of the city (near the factory site) to be sold to raise the $60,000 bonus and that "12 men had signed an agreement to stand good for the $60,000 provided that ATTACHMENT: they were secured by an indemifying bond signed by 112 citizens of the city".

The lots, 300 in all, were sold by random drawing for $300.00 each. The Frisco Railroad paid $10,000 for five acres of the ten acre factory site to be used for spurs to the new factory and this money was added to the bonus fund. By December 20, the bonus and site money had been raised and the shoe factory building was assured.

Work on the building began on April 9th, 1907, under Superintendent of Construction Hamilton, and continued throughout the summer. Plans for the building were placed in the Terminal Hotel window for viewing. THE DAILY REPUBLICAN carried frequent progress reports and large numbers of citizens, especially children traveled to the site to watch the town's largest building being erected.

The local press reported during construction: "The building will be five-stories high and a basement . . . 1,000,000 bricks have been ordered . . . center row of piers to extend several feet down into the ground, and are 6 feet two inches square, piers on outer edge six feet six inches square. On outer piers, a concrete wall 22 inches in width will be built extending around the outer edge and on this will be placed the brick work . . . will be 250 feet long extending north and south, 53 feet wide . . . to the east of the building an offset; which will contain the offices of the factory, will be erected, 45 feet by ATTACHMENT: 51 feet. Just north of the offset, a building for the boilers and engines will be built about the same size."

"A switch track has been run north into the lot from the main Frisco line. It is now a considerable distance from the factory but it is the intention of the company to build a large warehouse next to the track from which all shipping will be made. The box factory will be built at the south end of the lot next to the switch track."

The DAILY REPUBLICAN also reported, on July 19, that a new neighborhood was springing up "around the shoe factory and at least 100 new houses "were expected by fall. Indeed, well over 100 small, frame, two-storey houses were built on the narrow lots which had been sold to raise the $60,000 bonus for the factory. The fact that Cape Girardeau would soon have a housing shortage due to the large number of workers who would have to move to the city, was not lost on the entrepreneurs who purchased the lots. As it turned out, there was a housing shortage in the city for a number of years following the opening of the factory and those citizens who owned property in Cape Girardeau made handsome profits due to highly inflated real estate prices. The suburbs surrounding the shoe factory continued to grow and was named The Red Star District after a popular brand of shoes produced by the factory.

The factory began operating on September 9, 1907. Their plan was to add new employees a few at a time "as they are trained" and males and females 14 years

ATTACHMENT: and over were invited to apply. The factory made its first shipment of shoes to St. Louis on October 19 with 250 people on the payroll--75 were women, the rest men and boys--900 workers were needed to fully staff the operation. Male employees worked on the first, second, third, and fifth floors of the building. Female employees worked on the fourth floor where only two men, the foreman and a machinist were ever allowed. Virtue was further protected by a company directive that "no mingling is permitted at the noon hour."

In 1911, Roberts, Johnson, and Rand Shoe Co., formed in 1898, merged with Peters Shoe Co., a Missouri company formed in 1836, to become the International Shoe Co.

The International Shoe Co., announced to the Commercial Club, in June, 1919, that it contemplated building another plant to manufacture the same kind of shoes made in Cape Girardeau and proposed that if Cape Girardeau would pay half the cost of a new building, $33,075, they would locate it in the city and hire 350 additional employees. President H.L. Albert accepted the proposal on behalf of the Commercial Club and appointed a committee to raise the money, but because so much money had recently been raised for the war effort they found it difficult to meet the quota. The committee finally sent a letter to every business and a large number of individuals in the city reiterating the company's proposal and ending with the statement, ". . . we have proposed to raise this ATTACHMENT: fund by fixing a quota for firms and individuals and these quotas have been determined by a Committee . . . your quota if $_____. M. Bohnsack, Jr." By August $25,000 had been raised and the company agreed to accept that amount.

The new addition, which was constructed north of and adjoining the original building, was completed early in 1921, and by December of that year, another smaller building was being built in the complex east of the main building. By the mid-1920's, 1600 people were employed by the Cape Girardeau shoe factory at an average wage of $25. The International factory was the largest manufacturers-enough to provide a new pair per day for every man, woman, and child in the safe operations of its kind--a model for the shoe industry world-wide. Many foreign visitors came to Cape Girardeau over the years to observe the International Factory in operation.

In 1953, International Shoe acquired Florsheim Shoe Co., at a cost of over $20 million, as the company continued to expand.
