I declare the vehicle was emissions inspected again after the latest repairs and received a "Pass" for the Malfunction Indicator Light-Key On Engine Off (MIL-KOEO), OBD Communication and Readiness Result portions of the after repair inspection. SECTION D - ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

Explanation of Terms

Qualifying Repair - Any repair or adjustment performed on a vehicle's emissions-control system, after failing an initial Gateway Vehicle Inspection Program emissions inspection, determined through diagnostic investigation or subsequent emissions inspection outcome as reasonable for correcting the causes of the diagnostic trouble codes (DTCs) reported on the pre-repair emissions inspection failure report.

Qualifying repairs generally resolve the cause of the DTCs reported on the pre-repair emissions inspection. Diagnostic data from both before and after the repair that documents it was effective in correcting a faulty component is one way of qualifying a repair as necessary. An after repair emissions inspection result that indicates both the appropriate emissions monitor 'Completed' and does not report the DTC the repair was made to correct is another accepted means of qualifying the repair.

For a Cost-Based Waiver for Repairs Made by a Vehicle Owner, only the costs of the qualified parts purchased and installed by the vehicle owner may be considered.
