The Binder house is an example of Greek Revival architecture. It is a two story building with a rear two story section. This house has a roof of seamed metal with clapboard and corner board added to the outer walls. The roofline is gable pitch with a shed slope roof on the rear of the house. The second story front of the building has a raised pediment pitch section cut away from the roofline; this section has wide eaves and an arched window of an unusual design cut in the pediment's tympanum. The slightly elevated front porch has a truncated hip roofline of seamed metal supported by four wood columns. The windows are of simple sash design.

The August Newman house is a large two-story structure with many alterations and additions made to it; there has been a large modern addition made to the rear and an extended section (complete with tower) added to its right. The original section is two stories with a cement foundation, clapboard on the outer walls, and a simple gable roof. The end rooflines have return cornices. The front facing walls have bead and scroll work running along the cornice. There is a picturesque design applique painted on front. The front porch has wood columns and 'butterfly wing' fan brackets. A brick flue tops the center ridge. The August Newman house is an example of Homestead architecture.

The Pauline Harris house was, undoubtedly, a beautiful home at one time. Unfortunately, the beauty of this house has been destroyed by the addition of several section additions in the front. The original section of the building is of a modified Italian Villa architectural style and has many exceptional architectural features. Its most notable feature is the tall tower with the Mansard roofline; this tower has a paired bay window and a lunette. The second story has wall dormers with semi hip rooflines. There is a first floor bay facing the north. The front built on sections house a liquor store and a tavern.

The Bourbon hotel is a massive square building made of red brick. Essentially, this building has a variety of different architectural features. There is a series of gabled wall dormers projecting from the third floor or the enlarged frieze of the entablature. Lower floor windows are arch shape with brick relief arches. It has a hip roofline. The Bourbon hotel is a Foursquare style of architecture with a Victorian Gothic influence.

DETERMINE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This building was possibly used as the Bourbon Farmer's Exchange at one time; it is a two story structure with a one story brick side addition and a rear frame addition. The original section of this building has a partial rock foundation, and a (possibly) lime concrete construction. The most outstanding architectural feature is the false front facade ornamented by coping tile weather caps running along the upper edge; there is a geometric pseudo brick pattern decorating the frieze of this facade. The roofline is flat. There are side entry ways; most windows are one over one sash with the front windows and lower section covered by awnings. The side addition is of brick construction and is a fairly recent addition.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This house is an unusual amalgamation of design and construction. Construction features of this building include a rock foundation, brick wall construction, and a shingle roof. This house has cross gable rooflines which form cross gable pediments. This building has an elevated front brick porch with wood columns and a semi hip roofline. Wooden floral designs have been carved into the pediments of the cross gables. An unusual array of brick design has been worked into the frieze of the building. Side windows are arched with segmental brick arches overhead and plain slip sills underneath. This building is an example of modified Victorian Gothic architecture.

DETERMINE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Kruse house is a two story building that has been highly modified. Originally this house was constructed of bricks manufactured in Bourbon. Mr. Kruse covered this brick facade with the present “Cherryville” stone. The Kruse house has a stone frame, a shingle roof, and a cement porch with four square columns. The windows appear to be fairly modern. There is a side enclosed porch made of wood frame with a stone wainscoting. There is a right side stone chimney. The Kruse house is an example of modified Greek Revival architecture.

The Rohrer house has an oak and pine frame; the original section of this house has a foundation of rock piers and stone. The exterior walls have been covered with wood clapboard and the roof has been covered with shingles. The front porch has a sloping shed roofline and four wood columns. The windows have modern shutters. Alterations include the enclosing of a rear porch and the addition of the front porch. The original section of this building is two stories of a rectangular plan shape. The Rohrer house is an example of Ozark Vernacular architecture with Greek Revival influence.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Cook Station Bank is now used as a private residence but still retains many of the commercial features that it once possessed. As is evident by its many unique features (and despite its commercial facade) this building exhibits much of the architectural sensitivity with which it was made. As is obvious, the most unique features of this building are the half fan light windows on the second floor; these in turn, are accented by semi elliptical brick arches. This building is constructed from red brick which could possibly have been made locally. The off centered front door has side lights with a picture window (possibly a more recent addition) to its right. This building is of a square plan shape and has a medium pitch gable roofline. The front porch is (although not known for certain) a fairly recent addition and pervers as well as obscures the natural lines of this simplistic and graceful building.

The Cook Station Depot was (obviously) the stopping point for the railroad which ran through the town of Cook Station. It was moved in 1968 to its present location (about 150 ft. from the original site) in the hope of converting it into a one room private residence; however, this plan fell through and it has not been used since. Although in a deteriorated condition, the Depot retains much of its original grace. The outside is covered with unpainted weatherboard and the foundation is cement. It has a gable roofline with wide eaves, knee braces and gable trim at the ends. There is an inverted arrowhead tooth design decorating the pediments. The windows are original six over six panes of simple sash design; the door is wood panel and is off centered. Rolled asphalt covers the roof. The Cook Station depot is an example of Victorian Gothic architecture.

The Johnson House is a two story building of a square plan shape. The roof is covered with shingles and the exterior wall covering is masonite board applied over a white frame. There is a side brick chimney and a side roof brick chimney. The windows appear to be original with two over two panes. There is a centered front door on the first and second levels with flanking windows. Its most outstanding architectural feature is the second floor porch with wooden porch posts. The interior floor plans include five rooms downstairs and four bedrooms (remodeled from the original five bedrooms) upstairs; a rear addition with a salt box roofline has been added in back. There is an open staircase in the main hallway; original terra cotta tile and a brick fireplace remain in the living room. All in all the interior of the house retains many of the original features that it once had when it was used as the Cook Station Hotel. The Johnson house is a modified American Foursquare style of architecture.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE (IN ONE PARAGRAPH)

Railroad - The Cook Station Hotel use to be a stopping place for travelers and employees of the railroad line (Frisco) which ran through the heart of Cook Station. The railroad has long since stopped passing through Cook Station; the railroad tracks were removed last year. Leander and Mabel Johnson bought the Cook Station Hotel in 1920 and it has remained in the Johnson family.

The Cook Station Mercantile Store & Train Stop was probably, at one time, an impressive and well kept building; unfortunately it has been neglected. As a result it is in poor condition and is, architecturally speaking, a combination of erratic and incompatible building materials. There are few features worth mentioning. However the most obvious (and certainly the least offensive) one is the store's rock foundation. The building is of a rectangular plan shape and the roofline is flat. The front of the building has an attached porch with a cement foundation, a shed slope roof, and wooden posts; it is, quite possibly, structurally unsound and aesthetically hideous. The interior of the store is, however, this building's saving grace. It is a large room with oak floors and an original oak counter. There are old seed bins which are, almost certainly, antique; there is what is called a "Liar's Bench" which has, undoubtedly, been the resting place for many a visitor who had the tendency of "stretching the truth" while telling tales.

The Cook Station Mercantile Store is a Vernacular style of architecture.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE (IN ONE PARAGRAPH)

Commerce - The Cook Station Train Stop & Mercantile Store was at one time an integral part of the Frisco railroad train's itinerary; in back of the store there remains a water tank (which was filled from the spring house located 150 ft. away) used to fill the steam engines of the Frisco railroad. The store, of course, is still in operation. The Frisco trains stopped coming to Cook Station many years ago; the old railroad tracks were removed in the fall of 1985.

The Canaan Community Church is a very charming and well kept building with graceful and simplistic architectural lines. This two story building is of a rectangular plan shape and has a medium pitch gable roofline. The exterior is covered with weatherboard and the roof is covered with shingles; it has a rock foundation. The windows are four over four simple sash framed by white molding. The attached front entrance has a cement foundation, a gable pitched roof with exposed rafters, and centered double wooden doors. There are two brick chimneys on the ridge of the right roof. Members of the Canaan Community Church take great pride in this building and have kept it painted and structurally sound; several years ago the interior was remodeled. This is a Utilitarian style of building.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE (IN ONE PARAGRAPH)

Community Planning/Religion - Sam Craig originally deeded the land for the church in the late 1800's. At that time and up until several years ago, this Church was known as the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. However, within the last few years, the Church has reorganized under the name and congregation of the Canaan Community Church. The Craig family is also in the distributing business which is located in Salem.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Blue Springs school was built in 1894 to replace another schoolhouse which had burned; this school was used for some time but was eventually converted into a private residence. Features of the Blue Spring School include a rock foundation, an oak frame, and a tin roof. Modern materials have been added to the outside walls of the building and a carport garage has been added to its right. This building is a Utilitarian style of architecture.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The original remaining section of the Lerwick house is the front part and the tower; the back section burned some years ago and was replaced with a more modern style of architecture. The front section contains the dining room, living room, foyer, and storage. The original section has an oak frame, a rock foundation, and at one time had a wraparound porch (which has since been removed). The Lerwick house has a multi gable roofline with wide eaves. The front porch has a semi hip roof with Queen Anne turned porch posts. The windows are a narrow and vertical style of one over one panes. The most outstanding feature of the Lerwick house is the two and a half story turret tower. The Lerwick house is an example of Modified Victorian Gothic architecture.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Packard rental house has a gable roofline with an attached shed roof porch. The porch has four square columns with railings, a wooden porch floor, and a rock foundation. The door is off centered with unevenly spaced single sash windows set in plain molding. There is an off centered ridge flue. The main section of the building sets on a rock foundation. This building is of a rectangular floor plan shape and is 1 1/2 stories high; it is painted white with red trim. Alterations include the building of a family room in the back of the house (added by Cribb) and the addition of a laundry room and carport by Mr. Packard. The interior has been completely modernized. The Packard Rental house is an example of a modified Colonial Revival style of architecture.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Packard log cabin is made of sawed logs filled with mortar and cement. It was originally used as the main house but is now used as the dining room of a newer home. The interior has the original log rafters and a sandstone fireplace. The Packards' have added a self supporting roof (which is covered with plaster) and insulation; the northern outer wall has been covered with stucco. The rock used for the foundation was taken from a local quarry and possibly the same rock was used for the construction of the rock chimney. This is a log cabin style of architecture.

DETERMINE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The original section of the Shank house has a medium pitched gable roofline with exposed eaves; the side addition has a sloping shed roof. The second story has three evenly spaced, single sash windows. The centered doorway has a cement step up porch; flanking windows are set in plain molding and have three vertical panes over single panes. There are two brick chimneys; one on the side ridge of the original structure and one on the side addition. This is a Utilitarian style of architecture.

The Roedemeier house is a nicely restored example of Victorian Gothic architecture. This two story building has a combination of high hip and medium pitched gable rooflines. Construction features of this building include a stone foundation, a sandstone basement, a shingled roof, and outer walls covered in weatherboard. Architectural features include wall dormers, paired windows of single sash design, and gable ornament trim (complete with inverted finials) decorating the pitched eaves. The interior has the original cypress woodwork around the door frames, and an open stairway with ornate spindles. The Roedemeiers’ have decorated the interior in a time period design in keeping with the age and style of the house. An extra room with a semi oriel window has been added to the front. The porch has cement steps and a lattice like porch base.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Cheryl Pitts house was at one time a log cabin. Extensive alterations have since been made. Construction features of this building include clapboard on the exterior walls, a shingle roof, and a cement foundation. This two story building is of a basic square plan shape with two additions; one in the rear (of one story) and one to the side with a shed slope roof. The main section of this building has a gable roofline. The front porch has a semi hip roof and fieldstone construction for the porch posts. Windows are of simple sash design.

The West house is a massive building and, despite the incompatibility of its outside building material, is still quite impressive. The West house has a pine frame and a cement foundation; the roof has been covered with rolled asphalt, and the exterior wall material is of (red) clapboard. Interesting architectural features of this house include its three stories with cross gable rooflines and wide eaves. There is a single centered front door which, unornamented by either a porch or other covering, creates a stark plain appearance to the front of the house. Windows appear to be original with single sash, four over four panes. There is a red brick chimney on the side ridge; a section addition in the back has a shed slope roof. The interior floor plan includes four rooms downstairs and three rooms upstairs. The West house is a modified Federal style of architecture.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

David and Ruby Christisen have owned this house for 14 years and in that length of time have renovated it from a neglected farm building into an attractive example of modified Greek Revival architecture. The construction of the Christisen house includes an oak frame, cement foundation, and a shingle roof; the exterior wall covering is clapboard. Alterations that have been made by the Christisens' include paneling and insulating the interior of the house, installing a fireplace, adding a new roof and laying carpeting over the wood floors. A carport has been added to the right side. The floor plan includes three rooms up and three rooms down. The most outstanding architectural features of this house are the tri sided bay window and the 'balconet' porch which has a gable pediment roofline. The main sections of this house have gable rooflines; the porch has a shed roofline. The front porch has a cement foundation, wood columns, and partial stone post piers of painted native stone rock.

DESCRIPTION THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Kolb house has a pine frame construction, a stone foundation on the original part of the house, and a cement foundation on the later addition. The roof is shingled and the exterior has been covered with clapboard. It does not have a basement.

Architectural features of this house include a medium pitched gabled roof with wide eaves. The front porch has a slightly elevated front porch with five, square wooden posts, a cement floor, board and batten on the ceiling, and a semi hip roof. There is a brick chimney on the rear ridge. The front windows are simple sash windows; side windows are two over two panes. The floor plan consists of four rooms and a utility room downstairs with two bedrooms upstairs. The Kolb house is of a square plan shape and is of two stories. Alterations include an added side addition with a sloping shed roof. Mr. Kolb enclosed a back porch into a utility room. The Kolb house is an example of modified Greek Revival architecture.

   DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

   The Shafferkoetter house has been renovated from a shell into a nice example of modified Colonial Revival architecture. Originally, this house was two stories with four rooms but it has been much altered over the years. This house has a partial rock foundation, an oak frame, and a shingled roof. The exterior wall covering is of clapboard; modern shutters have been added to the windows. The main section of this house has a tripart gable roofline. A rear addition has a shed roofline and a cement foundation; a rear back porch has been added. The interior of the Shafferkoetter house has been modernized yet the decor is in keeping with the time period in which the house was originally built; the interior has many original features such as pine wainscoting and an open staircase.

DESCRIPT THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This building is constructed of cut stone and was built in the 1800's. This building has been used for many commercial purposes and has been used as both a restaurant and a tavern. It appears that both the doors and windows have been cut down to present size. The most unique architectural feature of this building is the contrasting stone entablature. This building is an example of a modified Richardsonian Romanesque style of architecture.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Holy Cross Convent is a stately solid building constructed and ornamented in heavy stonework; the roof has been shingled in modern materials. The Holy Cross Convent has many unique architectural features. This two story school/convent has a gable roofline with an end stone chimney; several gabled roof dormers project onto the front. The elevated front porch has stone columns and is decorated by cut stone arches underneath. The most unique architectural feature of this building is the tower with a conical roof facing the front. An oriel bay window (made of wood) faces the southern side. The Holy Cross Convent is an example of modified Victorian Romanesque architecture.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE (IN ONE PARAGRAPH)

Education/Religion - Reverend Curtis J. Hornsey purchased the Haskel stone house and seven acres of land in 1920; in 1927 the Sisters of Notre Dame occupied the stone building and established a Catholic school. The Holy Cross convent is no longer used and has been abandoned since the early 1970s. The building itself still retains a graceful and inspiring ambience and is well maintained by the parishioners of the Holy Cross Catholic Church.

The Prickett house is a two story building of a Foursquare architectural style. There is a one story addition to the rear which detracts from the overall symmetry of the building. The main section of this building has a rock foundation of native sandstone (that was mined from nearby), clapboard siding, and a seamed metal roof. Architectural features include a truncated hip roofline with a straddle ridge brick chimney. The front porch has an elevated cement foundation, a flat roofline, and wooden porch columns. There are doors on the first and second floors; a transom light is over the first floor door. Windows are of simple sash design and are evenly spaced.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This house is made of red brick and the roof is covered with gray shingles; it has a partial basement. Architectural features include a roof dormer on the second floor with a shed roofline and paired windows. Its most outstanding architectural feature is the bowed bay window on the western side molded with semi elliptical brick design relief arches; its four bay windows are of narrow vertical shape of one over one sash. The upper panels of all four windows have Gothic Tracery muntins creating an intricate hexagonal and diamond shape design. The house has a hipped roofline. The porch has a wooden floor, a shed roofline, and board and batten on the ceiling. The centered front door has flanking windows with similar gothic tracery design as found on the bay windows. The plan shape is basically square and is 1 1/2 stories in height. Alterations include the enclosing of the East side porch into a room; this room is built around the brick columns of the porch and is covered in white frameboard. The Peveyhouse house is of a modified Federal style of architecture.

The Cuba Marble & Granite building is constructed of rock slabs of fieldstone, granite, and Missouri red granites; it has a cement foundation without a basement. The roof is covered with octahedral black asphalt shingles.

All windows are recessed with six over six panes and are framed in white molding with lugsills. The roofline has a tripart steep pitched gable with protruding eaves with a center ridge red brick chimney on the ridge of the east gable. It has an off centered doorway made of wood with nine panes in the window.

The floor plan is a modified L shape of one story. There are two rooms (an office and workshop) in the interior. This is an example of Ozark Victorian Gothic architecture.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Hamilton house has a stone foundation and (probably) an oak frame; the exterior wall is covered with weatherboard and the roof is shingled.

Although in a fairly neglected condition, the Hamilton house is still an imposing two story example of Queen Anne architecture. Its most outstanding architectural feature is the projecting gabled pediment facing the front; scaled down versions of this pediment ornament the East and the West sides of the house. All three gabled pediments have a fishscale design, wide eaves with return cornices, and an intricate filligree and spindle gable ornament. The front pediment has massive scroll brackets with inverted finials. Other features of this house include a bottom story wraparound porch with spindles and columns and a partially removed upper story porch. There is a brick chimney on the Western side. The Hamilton house is a beautiful example of Queen Anne architecture.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Lewis house has a rock foundation and an oak frame. The roof is covered with gray shingles and the exterior wall covering is of brown masonite. The Lewis house has a high hip roof with an off-centered chimney of red brick. The upper story has three evenly spaced triple sash windows framed in plain molding; there is a "pseudo frieze" of contrasting white clapboard. The front porch has a cement floor and a shed roof with the cornice forming a recessed (clapboard covered) pediment. The porch has four Queen Anne porch posts with ornamental brackets trimmed with spindles. The centered doorway has a transom light and is framed in molding; its ornamental design includes a cornice with a half-circle bullseye, corner blocks trimmed with finials, and a lower apron front. The Lewis house is an example of modified Greek Revival architecture.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The original section (front) of the Zulpo house has an oak frame and a stone foundation; the rear section (a later addition) has a cement foundation. The roof has been covered over with black shingles and the exterior has been covered with clapboard; the windows are framed with modern shutters. Architectural features of the Zulpo house include a medium pitch roofline. There is a two sided wraparound porch adorned by Queen Anne porch posts and scroll brackets; the ceiling is of board and batten. The front porch has a transom of stained glass.

The Zulpo house was originally a two story structure with a living room and bedroom downstairs and two bedrooms upstairs. A back addition consisting of a dining room, kitchen, utility room, and bath were added in 1950 by Reeves (a next door neighbor). The Zulpo house is an example of Modified Princess Anne architecture.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Cottrell rental house is an attractive building and, despite modern alterations, still retains its basic charm. The Cottrell rental house has a gable roofline and a straddle ridge brick chimney; the roof is covered with tin and the exterior wall covering is of clapboard. There is a centered doorway on the first and second floors - both doors have side lights. The first floor door is wooden with an oval pane of glass. There is a two story front porch with the second story featuring a gable pediment roof with ornamentation of gingerbread vergeboard and Queen Anne turned porch posts. The original front section had a floor plan of two rooms up and two rooms down; it now has eight rooms and a sun porch. The foundation material is unknown - it does not have a basement. The plan shape is basically rectangular with alterations. This house is painted white with red trim. The Cottrell rental house is a Modified Greek Revival style of house with Victorian Gothic influence.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Czech house is a two story building with back and side room additions. The exterior walls have been covered with clapboard and the windows and doors have been covered with modern aluminum screens. The main two story section of the house has a gable roofline with wide eaves; the roof material is of seamed metal. Foundation material is cement with front cement piers infilled with fieldstone rock. There are double centered doors on the first and second levels. The most outstanding architectural feature of this building is the two tiered front porch with partial Queen Anne turned porch posts. In addition to the original section, there is a side addition and (it appears) three rear section additions. The architectural style of the Czech house is Colonial Revival.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Dillard Mill is one of the few remaining Grist mills. This mill was built around 1904 after the first one (established around the Civil war days) burned; it was built by Emil and Mary (Emil's sister) Mischke and was an integral part of the Crawford county agricultural community producing up to 60 barrels a day; it was operated as a water powered gristmill until 1956. The present condition of this Mill is excellent; it has been well preserved and carefully maintained by the previous owners and (now) by the State of Missouri. It is a three story structure with a basement cut from the stone upon which this building rests. The interior is original with only minor repairs having been made. The exterior is covered with tin and the roof covered with seamed metal. The windows are original with six over six lights. The Dillard Mill is a Utilitarian style of building.
Economics/History - The Dillard Grist Mill was very important to the economy of the Dillard community. After the Mishckes' sold it to E.L. Klemme he turned part of the area into a resort. To insure its maintenance as well as its intrinsic historic value and beauty, Mr. Klemme donated the mill and the property to the Ladd foundation (in St. Louis) who in turn lease it to the State of Missouri. It is now used as part of the Dillard State Park and tours are conducted for visitors interested in the technology and workings of the Mill and the historic era which it represents.

   DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

   The Porter house is a two story structure of a basic square plan shape. The design of this house is very unique and charming with several outstanding architectural features. The Porter house has a steeply pitched gable roofline with wide eaves; a wall dormer room with double paired windows and a gable roofline juts from the front roof of the house. Its most unique feature is the set of triple windows recessed under a pseudo wooden arch on the side of the house; these windows have Victorian Gothic tracery in the upper window panes which create a diamond-triangle design. The front and side doors have transom lights. A partial wraparound porch with wooden columns and porch spindles encompass the front and eastern sides of the building. There is a straddle ridge brick chimney with corbeled chimney caps; the roof is covered in cedar shake shingles. The Porter house is a Colonial Revival style of architecture with Gothic Victorian influence.

The Dillard-Wilhite store is a three story building with a tin roof and weatherboard siding. Many of the windows have been boarded over but the remaining windows appear to have four over four sash lights. The foundation is of cement. There is a double wood paneled entry door; it has a medium pitch gabled roofline. For many years it was used for storing hay. The Dillard-Wilhite store is a Utilitarian style of building.

The Abney house is a unique design of architecture with frame construction of oak, a cement foundation, and a one room basement; the exterior wall covering is weatherboard and the roof is covered with black asphalt shingles. Architectural features of the Abney house include multi variegated rooflines of high hip, gable, and a partial wraparound shed roof porch. With the exception of the porch all roofline ridges are ornamented with a ridgetop ornament design. The most distinguishing feature is the elevated partial wraparound porch supported by wooden circular columns. The front door has a transom light and the main floor windows are one over one single sash. There are several brick chimneys. The interior was remodeled and modernized 15 years ago. The Abney house is an example of Greek Revival architecture with a Colonial Revival influence.

DETERMINE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Hickey house has a partial oak frame and a concrete foundation. The roof is covered with shingles and the exterior wall covering is clapboard. Features of this house include a prominent pediment overhang with paired windows which creates a recessed porch. The roofline is of medium gable pitch with wide eaves. The centered door has flanking windows. The porch foundation is concrete with partial stone posts. There is a straddle ridge brick chimney. Alterations include an enclosed side room with a shed slope roof which was at one time a car port; a kitchen and bath have been added onto the back of the house. The interior is of a modern design; there is an open stairway leading to the second floor; it is 1 1/2 stories and is of a square plan shape. The color scheme of this house is white with green trim. The Hickey house is a modified Greek Revival style of architecture.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Fanning schoolhouse sits on stone piers and the frame is (probably) made of oak. It has a tin roof with an exterior wall covering of weatherboard and frameboard; modern green shutters have been added to the windows. It is two stories of a basic rectangular plan shape. The four paneled front door is off-centered; the roofline is medium pitch gable with exposed eaves. There is an attached garage addition to the rear which is covered with clapboard. The schoolhouse is now only used as a storage area. The Fanning Schoolhouse is an Ozark Greek Revival style of architecture.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Hattersley house originally had log walls 9" thick; frame construction has since been added. The main section of this house has a medium pitched gabled roofline and a straddle ridge brick chimney. It has a tin roof and the exterior walls are covered in clapboard and frameboard. Side wall pediments are covered with vertical board. This house has a cement foundation, a partial root cellar, and a cellar to the right of the building. Alterations include the enclosing of the front and back porches and the addition of a utility room and a kitchen. Despite major alterations and structural changes the Hattersley house is an Ozark log cabin style of architecture.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE (IN ONE PARAGRAPH)

History/Exploration - The Hattersley house was originally part of the property deeded to John Fanning by the railroad. John Fanning was an Irish emigrant who moved to this area and established a farm in 1861. Shortly thereafter the Frisco Railroad built a depot and named the site "Fanning." The Fanning Post Office was operated by John Fanning’s daughter, Mrs. Sue Wood. For years the Post Office was operated out of the Fanning home. The Hattersley house may be the site of the original Fanning house and post office.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Patterson Store is built of contrasting yellow brick in the front and red brick on the sides and the back; the foundation is cement. The cornice has coping tile weather caps (an iron band) which runs along the top facade and is repeated along the stepped down roofline. The centered front door on the original section is of wood with an upper panel of glass and has a transom light framed by a shaped lintel. Flanking commercial windows have nine glass panes. There are paired windows (simple sash style) on the right section of the building and along the side. There is a brick wall chimney along the left side. Although in a deteriorated condition, this building has some rather unique architectural features. The Patterson store is a Commercial Style of architecture.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Scott house is a two story house with a brick foundation, a weatherboard covered exterior, and a shingled roof. Its most outstanding architectural feature is the single gabled wall dormer with paired windows on its south side. The front porch has a gabled pediment roof with wide eaves and wooden square posts. The roofline is medium gable pitch with a straddle ridge brick chimney. The doorway is off centered and there are paired single sash windows on the upper story. There is a two story back balcony with partial brick piers. The Scott house is an example of modified Greek Revival style architecture.

The Cottrell house is a large two story building of a rectangular plan shape. It is a modified style of Greek Revival architecture. It has an elevated front porch with wood columns, a pediment overhang (with return cornices), and roof dormers. The foundation is cement and the roof is shingled. The front door has an overhead transom; there is a side brick chimney. Bob and Karen Cottrell are renovating this building into a bed and breakfast establishment.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE (IN ONE PARAGRAPH)

Military - The Cottrell house is the site where General Price's troops stayed after the battle was fought at Huzzah Valley (which was soon after the battle of Pilot Knob). The Carr family had to feed and care for the Confederate army and when they finally did leave they took the rest of the Carr's livestock and horses. The original farm house had a patch in the wall by the fireplace where a cannonball had gone through. The house was torn down about 1913 but the original stone fireplace is still standing, with the present house built around it.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE (IN ONE PARAGRAPH)

Religion/Military - Marion Traask received this land by U.S. Patent Land Grant in 1843; he sold it to Jason Carr in 1855 with the reservation that one acre be donated to the Cumberland Presbyterian Union Congregation of Crawford County. The Church was used as a hospital for both Confederate and Union Troops after the battle was fought at Huzzah Valley between Union troops led by General Thomas Ewing and Confederate troops led by General Price. The Church has been enclosed and is now used as the Huzzah Valley Stable.

The McGinnis house is a two story structure with a stone foundation, an oak frame, and a shingled roof; the exterior wall has been covered with weatherboard. Architectural features of this building include a cross gable roofline which forms cross pediments. The front gable pediment is decorated with a sunburst design, an arched window, and delicate gable trim. The most notable architectural feature is the two tiered front porch with a centered front door on the first and second levels; both doors have transom lights. The porch has a flat roofline, and Queen Anne porch posts with brackets, and spindle fretting along upper edges. Windows are one over one simple sash. The McGinnis house is an example of Victorian Gothic architecture.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This house is a two story building of a rectangular plan shape; there is a one story addition with a shed slope roof in the rear. This house is built out of lime concrete and is covered in stucco. The main section of the Rook house has a gable roofline of seamed metal; there are several brick chimneys. There is a centered front door with a gable hood covering. Windows are evenly spaced over the face and the side of the building. This building has a plain facade due to the absence of any ornamentation or design. The Rook house is a Homestead House style of architecture.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Garrison house is of an irregular plan shape with several additions. The original section is two story with a one story addition in back. This house appears to be in a fairly deteriorated condition on the outside but (according to Mr. Lockhart) the interior has been well maintained. Construction details of the Garrison house include a cement foundation, rolled asphalt on the roof, and a weatherboard covered exterior. Windows appear to be original with side windows having six over six lights; there is a straddle ridge chimney and a gable pitch roofline. Originally, the Garrison house was built on a site three hundred yards from its present location. However, it was moved in the late 1950s. The Garrison house is an example of modified Greek Revival architecture.

DATE Jan. 28, 1986

The Pinkston house is a two story building of a square plan shape with additions. The interior and exterior have been kept in nice condition. This house has masonite board covering on the exterior walls and a shingled roof. There is a truncated hip roofline with a side roof chimney. The front porch has a shed slope roof and columns; at one time this was a wraparound porch but it has been altered to its present appearance. There are hood shields over the original sash windows. The interior of the house has been fairly modernized; the interior room plan includes four bedrooms upstairs with original wood panel closets and china doorknobs.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Gail house is a massive house that is simplistic and impressive. This two story structure was constructed from native sandstone originally cut from a quarry which was within 200 feet of the house. This house has arched windows with relief segmental arch surrounds. It has a medium pitch gable roofline which is covered with seamed metal. There are two projecting roof dormers with flat rooflines, and a brick straddle ridge chimney. The floor plan of this house includes six rooms and a bath. There is a full basement. The Gail house is an example of modified Richardsonian Romanesque architecture.

SPECIFIC DATES   Circa 1901   BUILDER / ARCHITECT Fluck

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE (IN ONE PARAGRAPH)

Architecture/History - Otto Gail & Alice Dalnus immigrated to Missouri from Germany and married here in 1903. They originally lived in a log house. In 1901 they had a Mr. Fluck begin to build this house. Mr. Fluck was a Swiss mason who, at that time, lived in Forrest Hill. Mr. Fluck was paid two dollars a day for building this house; it took three years to finish. The property upon which this house rests was originally a land grant property to the railroad.

Rhinehard Gail and Hertha Gail Haase are the current property owners of the Gail house; they are the children of Otto and Alice.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This building is of a square plan shape and is two storys high. There is a centered front door recessed into the body of the building and flanked by commercial windows. The front porch has a shed roof and four columns; the roofline is flat. The exterior has been covered with vertical boards. This could possibly have been one of the first stores in Leasburg; at one time the front of this building faced the railroad tracks but (for unknown purposes) was moved so the front now faces the main street of Leasburg. This building is an American Foursquare style of architecture.

   DESCRIPTION
   The Leasburg Community building is a most unprepossing building of an irregular plan shape with many alterations.
   The construction is of fieldstone and the roofline is basically flat; there is a brick chimney. At one time this building was two stories in height and this second story use to be where the high school was taught; the second story was cut off many years ago. A brick addition was added by Albert Hamlin and the fieldstone rock was also added by him. Although the year in which the school was converted into a community hall is unknown, the city bought this for $10,000. The Leasburg Community building is a Utilitarian style of architecture.

The Phillips house is a pleasant example of Modified Queen Anne architecture in the Leasburg area; it has been slightly altered by the addition of a rear dining room and kitchen section. It has a pine and oak frame construction, a rock foundation, and a shingle roof. This is a two story building of a basic square plan shape. The Phillips house has original single sash windows framed in plain trim molding. The most elaborate architectural feature of this house is the two tiered front porch. The second floor porch is replete with Queen Anne turned porch posts, spindles along the porch frieze, spindle balusters, and a pediment gable ornamented with fishscale shingles. There are centered front doors on the first and second stories. The main section of the house has a gable roofline and a center ridge brick chimney. The interior has the original high ceilings.

The Mount Olive Baptist Church is of an irregular plan shape with several major room additions; altogether there are three sections. The back addition has a frame of cement blocks with simple sash windows and a clapboard pediment. The front section has a cement foundation, clapboard siding, wide eaves, and box cornice returns. The original section has a frame of rusticated stone construction with contrasting sawtooth design on the frame edges, or quoins. This middle section has an asphalt shingled roof, simple sash windows with two over two panes, and a cement foundation. The gable pitch roofline has wide eaves and purlins or "knee braces". The Mount Olive Baptist Church is a Utilitarian style of architecture.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The McClary house has an oak frame and a foundation of railroad ties and rocks. It has clapboard siding, a tin roof, and original windows. One room has been added to the back of the house. Although the exterior condition of this house appears in poor condition, the interior seems to have many original characteristics. The interior floor plan includes two upstairs rooms and four rooms downstairs. At one time this house was used as a duplex. The McClary house is an example of a Vernacular Greek Revival style of architecture.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Rowden house has had many alterations made to it over the last thirteen years by the Rowden family. This is a two story building of an irregular plan shape and irregular roofline. This building has a shingled roof, a clapboard exterior, and a stone foundation. At one time this property was used as a chicken ranch and when the Rowden family purchased the house it was no more than a shell. The Rowden family has since made many changes to it taking care to maintain at least some of the time period architecture. The most notable attempt has been in the interior where the original wainscoting, frame molding, and transom lights (over the connecting doors) have been preserved. The most distinguishing exterior feature is the two tiered front porch and the three sided, two story bay window addition. All front doors (on both first and second storys) have overhead transom lights. Unfortunately, the addition of black diamond cut window shutters seriously detracts from the overall grace of the building's appearance. However, the Rowden family has made a sincere effort to preserve many original features.
The Rowden house is an example of modified Greek Revival architecture.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Altman house was, at one time, the Leasburg Bank building. There are several architectural remnants of the bank building such as the commercial windows that flank the centered front door. The house has a shingled roof, masonite siding, and a gable pediment front porch roof. This is a one and a half story building of a square plan shape. The Altman house is a commercial style of architecture.

DETERMINE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Hansel house (the old Leasburg post office) has been altered into a residential style of building. However, it still retains some original features and certainly retains a trace of the post office facade that it once possessed. This house has a high pitched gable roofline which slants down and continues as the front porch roof. The exterior is covered with clapboard and the roof has been shingled. It has a stone foundation. The front porch has an elevated cement foundation and five square wooden porch posts. The centered front door has side lights and is flanked by commercial windows. A large wall dormer projects from the roof of this building. The interior floor plan includes four rooms, a bath, and a utility room downstairs; two rooms and a hall upstairs. There is an open spindle staircase of stained oak. Parts of the original wooden counter (of the post office) and original wood work remain in the living room. The Hansel house is a Bungalow style of architecture.

DETERMINE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Lockhart house is a two story building of a square plan shape. It has a cement foundation, exterior masonite wall covering, and an asphalt shingled roof. Architectural features of this house include a truncated hip roofline, and projecting wall dormers on three sides of the building. The windows are simple sash with several modern ones having been added to the upper story. The front porch has Queen Anne turned posts and a semi hip roofline. At one time this house had been divided into two apartments. The current owners are attempting to renovate both the interior and the exterior. The interior floor plan includes one large open room upstairs (which the owners hope to divide into bedrooms) and four large rooms downstairs; most rooms have nine foot ceilings. Alterations by the current owners include the replacing of plaster walls with sheet rock, the adding of insulation, and putting in new flues. The Lockhart house is an example of Colonial Revival architecture.

DESCRIPTION
The Sacred Heart Catholic Church is a one story building with a rear side addition. This building has a cement foundation, clapboard siding, and a shingled roof. It has a high pitched gable roofline. The front porch has an elevated cement foundation, a flat roofline, and four wooden columns. It has centered double wooden doors in front. Although there are no front windows, there are lancet windows with gothic tracery design on the sides of the building; right side windows are covered with modern hoods. There is a cement block side chimney on the right side and a side addition with a shed slope roof and a wooden paneled door to the left side of the building. The style of the Sacred Heart Catholic Church (the Joe Doza house) is Gothic Revival with a Greek Revival porch addition.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE (IN ONE PARAGRAPH)

Religion - The Sacred Heart Catholic Church was built in 1883 and served Leasburg's Catholic members until several years ago when, due to a declining Catholic population and Church attendance, the Church closed. It was then sold to the current owner who has possible plans of renovating it into a private residence.

The Leasburg Market building is a massive, irregularly shaped building which is, because of its incompatible combination of building materials and design, of little architectural noteworthiness. The most outstanding feature of the building is its false wooden commercial front and the commercial front porch with a flat roofline. The Leasburg Market is a Utilitarian style of architecture.

The Hinson house is a two story structure of a rectangular plan shape. It has a truncated hip roofline covered with shingle material; the exterior wall covering is of clapboard; it has a stone foundation. There is a centered door on the first and second floor. Although quite unspectacular in style and appearance, its one rather unique feature is its two tiered 'portico' with ionic style columns complete with volutes along the capital; there is lattice trim along the upper edges of the porch. The Hinson house is of an Ozark Greek Revival style of architecture.

   DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

   Although deteriorated, the Oak Hill Bank still retains a semblance of its commercial bank facade. The Oak Hill bank has a cement block construction; the lower front section has clapboard covering, paired sash windows, and an off centered front door. This building has a hip roofline with roof material of seamed metal. Window styles are simple sash and four pane simple sash. A two story wooden addition has been added to the right rear section; this addition is of frame material and appears to have been used as a rear entrance way. There are paired chimneys on the side ridge roof. The Oak Hill Bank is a two story building of a basic "L" plan shape; its architectural style is Modified Greek Revival.

DESCRIPT THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The main section of the Shockley house is the two story middle section; this is probably the original section of the building. Several additions including the two tiered front enclosed porch and the rear section have been added on. The main section of the building has a gable roofline, a tin roof, and a side ridge brick chimney. The side windows are simple sash set in plain molding. This house is abandoned and is not currently used for anything. The Shockley house is a Vernacular style of architecture.

   DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

   The Dunton House is a two story structure of a unique architectural design. The Dunton house has a rock faced construction with sawed rock quoins. It has a truncated hip roofline of shingled material. The windows are of simple sash and are accentuated by segmental relief arches and lug sills. The most outstanding architectural feature of the Dunton house is its front pedimented portico with a pediment roof, raking cornice, tympanum, and front columns of an ionic order. There is a rear side wood frame addition with a seamed metal roof. The original plan shape of the Dunton house was of a "T" shape but the addition of the wood frame section makes this house of an irregular plan shape. There is a beautiful oak staircase with spindles and knobs in the front hall. The Dunton house is of a Greek Revival style of architecture.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Oak Hill Church is a quaint building of an Ozark Greek Revival style of architecture. It has been well maintained throughout the years. The Oak Hill Church has a gable roofline with cornice returns and roof material of tin. The exterior wall covering is of weatherboard; the foundation appears to be of sandstone. The side windows are in excellent condition with sash style frames of six over six window panes. There is a side cement block chimney. The front entryway has double paneled wood doors with an overhead transom light. Certainly the most unique and unusual design feature of the Church is the fan shaped lunette which accentuates the plain pediment of the front face of the building. The Oak Hill Church is a one story building of a rectangular plan shape.

   DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

   The Jurgensmeyer house is a rambling two story structure that may have one time been used as one of the Oak Hill stores. This building has weatherboard siding, a gable roofline, and a two tiered front porch. The windows appear to be original. There is a centered front door on the first and second floors. Although this building is neither unique nor outstanding in any way, it is noteworthy because it is one of the original buildings in the quaint and historical town of Oak Hill. It is no longer used as a store or private residence; it is only used for storage.

DESCRIPTION

The Oak Hill Mill still stands even though it is in a deteriorated condition - only the shell of the building remains. The current owners obviously possess neither the foresight nor historical appreciation for this building and have allowed it to fall into a greatly neglected state. Most of this building has had rolled asphalt siding placed over the exterior; the roof material is of tin. The windows have been broken out and vandalized but were possibly two over two single sash. It has a rock foundation and is located next to Brush Creek.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE (IN ONE PARAGRAPH)

Commerce/Community History - The Oak Hill Mill was in operation from 1895 until the 1950's when competition from large flour mills forced it out of business. During its later years it was also used as a feed store and a grocery store. It was sold in 1956 to its current owner who, obviously, has done nothing but neglect it.

   DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

Pleasant Point Church is quaint and, fortunately, has been well maintained throughout the years. This building has a stone foundation, an oak frame, and a tin roof; the exterior walls are covered in weatherboard and frameboard. Architectural features of this Church include a gable roofline, a side ridge brick chimney, and double paneled doors in front. Windows are six over six panes of simple sash design. Pleasant Point Church is an example of a Utilitarian style of architecture.

The Abney house has a concrete foundation, an oak frame, a shingled roof, and clapboard on the exterior walls. It is an example of modified American Foursquare architecture. This house has a hip roofline, a side slope chimney, and a two sided wraparound porch with a cement foundation, wood columns, and a slope roof. Windows are of simple sash design. Interior alterations have been made: the living room was been paneled and a room partition was removed; all of the sheet rock was replaced; heavy square sliding wood doors were replaced with a cut arch between the living room and the dining room. The interior floor plan includes three rooms downstairs and three bedrooms and a linen closet on the upstairs.

DETERMINE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Brinker log cabin has a stone foundation, oak siding, and cedar shake shingles. It is a two room cabin. There is a large stone chimney which rests in the center of the building. This cabin (at that time owned by Snelson) served as the Crawford County Circuit Court's meeting place in 1835 and 1836. It was then sold to Brinker and was the unfortunate scene of the murder of the Brinker's youngest child by their Negress maid, Mary.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE (IN ONE PARAGRAPH)

Politics/Commerce - This cabin (at that time owned by Snelson) served as the Crawford County Circuit Court's meeting place in 1835 and 1836. It was then sold to the Brinker family and was the unfortunate scene of the murder of the Brinker's youngest child by their Negro maid, Mary. Mary's court trial lasted for two years and, upon being found guilty of murder, she was hanged. Both she and the Brinker child are buried on the 1.7 acre lot that the Brinker cabin rests upon. This cabin was also used as a cafe and hotel for another sixty years. Waldridge Powell and family purchased this cabin in the 1930s and then deeded the cabin and 1.7 acres of land to the Phelps County Historical Society.

DESCRIPT THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Brand house is a one story red brick building with a stone foundation; the brick was made on the property where a blacksmith shop use to be. The front face of the original building has a unique brick design along the frieze of the wall; there are two off centered wooden doors, one with a transom light. The front windows have two over two panes set in plain molding. The Brand house has a gable roofline, shingles, and two brick chimneys on the end ridges. A south addition has been added to accomodate a kitchen and a dining room. Altogether there are six rooms and an enclosed back porch. The interior has eight foot high ceilings and the floor has oak joist timbers which reach the full length of the house. This house does not have a basement but it does have an outside cellar. The Brand house is an example of modified Southern Colonial architecture.

Architecture/History - The brother of Jeramiah Key, A. Francis Key, use to run the roller mill in Steelville. The blacksmith shop that was one time on the Key's property made wagon wheels for the travelers caught up in the California Gold Rush. The Brand family bought the house and property 73 years ago and it has remained in the Brand family. The Brand house is a very nice and unique example of hand made brick architecture in this area; an example of Southern Colonial architecture is most unusual.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Cooper House is an example of a modified Mission style architecture. This house has a rock foundation and an asphalt shingle roof. Mission style buildings are covered in either stucco or plaster but this house has been covered in modern clapboard; the application of clapboard is in keeping with its simplicity of form. The front porch has round arches supported by piers and impost moldings which is in keeping with characteristics of Mission style architectural features. In contrast the front has a pediment overhang with wide eaves and a tympanum. There are scroll brackets along the corner edges. Underneath the front porch is a lattice like porch base.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Scott house is an example of Gothic Revival architecture modified by a Victorian Romanesque porch. It has high pitched cross gable rooflines and roof material of diamond shaped slate shingles; the pointed gable eaves are ornamented by curvilinear gingerbread trim. The front entrance has a gabled porch with compound round arched entry flanked by paired wood porch posts. A most delicate feature of this house is the stained glass fanlight above the front door with flanking stained glass side lights. This building has a stone foundation and the outer walls are covered in weatherboard siding. A rear addition, with semi enclosed porches, has been added to the original section of the house.

   DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

   The Kreamelmyer house is a massive and graceful two story building of a modified Queen Anne architectural style. Construction features of this building include a rock foundation, an oak frame, slate tiles on the roof and metal piping on the ridge; the outer walls are covered in weatherboard. Gable pitched roofs have return cornices, wide eaves, delicate vergeboard ornamentation, and applied fishscale shingles which is typical of Queen Anne architecture and identify it as such. Other architectural features of this building include narrow vertical (and often paired) simple sash windows, several which have gothic tracery design in the upper window panels. There is a transom light over the side door on the first floor. The Kreamelmyer house has a partial wrap-around porch with sloping roof and modified Roman order wood columns with plain square plinths and capitals.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Lackner building was originally one story in height; the second story was added on at a later date. This house is a Foursquare style of architecture with a Greek Revival influence. Its construction features include a rock foundation, an oak frame, and a shingled roof; the outer walls are covered with weatherboard and the corners have frameboard. Architectural features of the Lackner house include a truncated hip roofline with brick corbel capped chimneys on either side of the ridge. A roof dormer with paired windows project from the front slope of the roof. This building’s most outstanding feature is its double decked front porch. The upper deck porch has partial Queen Anne posts and unusual shaped spindles. The first story porch has squared columns and is partially enclosed by wooden boards. The bottom floor of this building is over 100 years old.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This building is a large and impressive house of Princess Anne architecture modified by a two-tiered Eastlake porch. The original section of this house is a narrow vertical two story structure. Construction features of this building include a rock foundation, weatherboard siding, vertical corner boards, and asphalt shingles on the roof. Windows are evenly spaced; the upper story and side windows are of single sash design framed in plain window moldings. The two story porch is accentuated by a lattice like porch base and, in keeping with the Eastlake style, has a cut out pattern between porch balusters, tapered round porch posts, heavy fan like brackets, and spindles along the porch frieze. The upper story porch is less elaborately ornamented with only cut out balusters and tapered porch posts. The gable overhang has a pitched roofline with applied fishscale shingles along the 'tympanum'. A one story modern rear section has been added.

The Brown house is a Vernacular style of architecture. It has a rock foundation, a tin roof, and an oak frame. Its most unique feature is the steeply pitched gable roofline with wide eaves; there is a front ridge chimney. The front porch has a shed roof and slender wood porch posts. There is a rear one story addition. The outer walls are covered in clapboard and side windows are three vertical panes over a single glass pane.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This building is a two story square plan shaped building that was originally constructed as a Catholic church; it is of a Victorian Gothic style of architecture. Although now used as a commercial establishment, this building retains most of the original features which identify it as Victorian Gothic style of building. This building has been greatly added onto with the addition of several sections to the rear; the outer walls and the roof have been covered in modern materials. Victorian Gothic features include a steeply pitched gable roofline and traditional gothic (pointed arch) windows. A straight headed door opening is used for the front entrance.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Steelville Library is an example of Townhouse architecture. It has brick wall construction, a brick foundation, and a tar roof. Original arched door and windows have been infilled to make more modern. The front door is flanked by commercial windows. Its most unique architectural feature is the string belt course and ornamental brick design entablature.

DETERMINE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Beasley house is a two story building with many alterations from the original two room floor plan. It has a cement foundation, white clapboard on the exterior, and a gray shingled roof with a straddle ridge brick chimney. The Beasleys' purchased this home in 1945 and have since added a screened in front porch and possibly the side brick chimney. Most of the windows appear to be of a very recent style and altogether the Beasley home is a greatly altered and aesthetically modernized house. It is surrounded by a wall of fieldstone rock. The Beasley house is an example of Vernacular Greek Revival architecture.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Wesco Baptist Church is a one and a half story building that at one time served as the Wesco schoolhouse; it is of an abbreviated 'L' plan shape. The front of the building has an off-centered plain wooden door with four single sash windows to the right. There is a brick chimney in the crook of the L. The exterior of this building is covered in weatherboard and the roof material is of black diamond shaped asphalt shingles. The Wesco Baptist Church has a multi gabled roofline with wide eaves and purlins or "knee braces." The back section of the building has exposed rafters along the eaves and there is a row of six windows with six lights over six lights. The foundation is made from cement blocks. The Wesco Baptist Church is an example of Modified Eastern Stick style architecture.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE (IN ONE PARAGRAPH)

Education/Religion - The Wesco Baptist Church building had its origins as the Wesco schoolhouse. Although the builder's name is not known, the schoolhouse was built in 1928. The school had always been used for religious purposes but the Wesco chapel was not officially organized until 1953 and was precipitated by a mission sect from Steelville. The Church officially opened in 1964. A retaining wall around the Church's parking lot was built by the WPA.

DESCRIPTION THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Boston log cabin is a simple one story log cabin of a rectangular plan shape. It has a gable roofline and a seamed metal roof. The basic construction is of oak logs filled with mud; the house rests upon cement piers. Wood shingles that form a pseudo pediment have been placed beneath the end gable rooflines. Windows and the door are intact but in poor condition. The owner placed a trailer on the same property. The cabin is no longer used.

This is a one and a half story building that at one time served as the Wesco Post Office & Store; it is no longer used. The post office has been moved to a different location and the store has been closed. The Wesco store has a seamed metal roof and rolled asphalt covering the exterior walls. The roofline is irregular with a combination of gable and shed slope lines. There are double off-centered front doors with irregular sized windows on the first floor. Second story windows are two over two panes. The front porch has a shed slope roof, wooden posts, and a cement floor foundation. There is a side brick chimney. The frame construction is probably of oak; it has a cement foundation. This store is an example of Bungalow architecture with a commercial style influence.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The original section of the Wesco store is of a basic square plan shape; however, a rear open shed addition has been added which is used as a garage/storage area. The roofline of the Wesco store is a medium pitch gable with a pseudo pediment formed by the application of weatherboard siding. The front porch has a shed slope roof of tin; the columns are of iron and the elevated front porch has a foundation of cement. The front centered double doors are recessed within the body of the building and are flanked by projecting commercial windows with lower wooden panels. The side exterior walls are covered with green galvanized tin. There is a side entry wood paneled door of wood with minute scroll design. The Wesco store is an example of commercial style architecture with a Greek Revival influence.
