Typical of ordinary filling stations converted to convenience store types.

New Station
A new service station that introduced some unique features was opened in downtown Joplin in November, 1928. In a story about the new station, The Joplin Globe stated:

"Offering speedy service, quality products and a great variety of merchandise both for motor cars and in the line of household equipment, the new service station of the Wholesale Oil Company at the northwest corner of Seventh and Joplin streets will be formally opened for business today. Bargain prices will be a regular policy, the company announced, and a special sale, lasting a week, will celebrate the opening today."

"The station is unique both in size - 12 cars can be serviced with gasoline at the same time - and in the stock of electrical kitchen equipment and other household articles carried in stock. The counters, display racks and show windows of the station building are supplemented by "inland merchanidises," glass-in display cases set between the gasoline pumps."

"I have three things to add to this. A man named Cunningham opened the bank in 1878, but in 1881 he was at 206 Main Street. He then moved to 154 Main Street. He was a very important person in this town. He did not move, but he built a new building. The early photo shows the typical brick and stone building with a small sign on top. It is located in the town center. It became the County Bank in 1923. It is about 1924. That would be the old facade of the building."

"P.C. Cunningham built himself as the 'industrial friend'. He invested his money in the bank because he had been a successful businessman. He was a high-profile person and dealt in high finance. He made a fortune in the town and was known as a wealthy man."

"In 1923, he moved the bank to a new location. The early photo shows the typical brick and stone building, with a small sign on top. It appears to have become the County Bank, which is still in the building today, about 1924. That would be when the old facade was removed and a new one put on."

4.10 Unusual, embedded columns have egg-and-dart ornamentation at the capital. Some piers also have cornices.

5. Michael, the architect, was the commandant of buildings, construction of new houses at large expense for the town. His designs were decorated with the use of his decoration, which included rich ornaments, such as pediments, fluted columns, etc.

6. The unusual feature is the large skylight that comes down from the roof to the entry, allowing light to filter through the upper floors.
This is a photography studio, Michael's office, and the second-floor office.

TIN COVERINGS

Identical building in Shape + Size to this is shown on the 1900 map as a residence. By 1905, it is a BLACK FURNACE. Through the 1920's, it is a HOME. In 1930, it is still HOME. It is assumed this is the same building, although it may have a relocated chimney.

Garage is back curt. (Notes)

50. Daniel Hardy was listed at this address from 1875 up to 1896, when he died. The house shown on the earlier maps doesn't match up in that he had no porches or late--or safe? Is this type of structure common in the area now? yes

2) The area was an important pioneer citizen. Born in Maine, he moved in 1850 to St. Louis, and in 1856 to Joplin. He served in the Civil War. He married Charlotte Jackson. They had two children.

3) The back garage seems to have been a stable for the hardware store.

Any Other Comments or Observations:

1) [ ] Back parts of building have been removed or remodeled.

2) [ ] EJ's hard to tell what this is. Seems to have been part of Keystone Hotel annex. Perhaps part of classing room. This portion may have been built about same time as KE, but not any earlier. There was a cluster of added onto structures there. Evidently the brick part of this structure (which would have been older) has been torn down since the 1954 map. It must have been some sort of storage or maintenance facility for the Keystone Hotel. U.S.

Difficult to Tell History, just talking to old man who lived in City Directory in 1925. From then until 1933, rented garage there. After 1933, lived at "vacant" but both 1939 & 1942 Sanborn maps show Missouri National Guard there. Cannot find any history.
