Description

A 2 1/2 story frame house with vinyl siding. The front elevation of the house features a hipped dormer and a three-story tower set at an oblique angle on the northeast corner. The front porches concrete floor and brick piers are in place, but the roof and columns are missing. The front door is flanked by rectangular sidelights and has decorative lintel molding. The 1/1 windows on the first and second floors are new and all the exterior trim is covered by aluminum panning. There is an integral brick chimney on the north side of the roof. A one-story bay window on the west end of the north elevation is three-sided and has a flat roof.

Description

This 2 1/2 house has a stone foundation, rusticated stone and brick walls, a hip roof and a 2 1/2 story tower. The facade of the house consists of a projecting gable roofed bay on the south, a central bay and the round tower on the north. The projecting gable-roofed bay contains the main entrance on the first floor, a pair of 1/1 windows on the second floor and a 1/1 window centered in the front facing gable end. The main entrance has two doors set into a large paneled wood opening. The gable end is sheathed with shingles. In the center bay of the facade, 1/1 windows are stacked on the first and second floors. The 2 1/2 story tower on the north end of the facade is round and has a conical roof. On each level of the tower, there are three 1/1 windows. Dressed stone bands encircle the tower and form the lintels and sills of the windows. A one-story porch covers the south and center bays of the facade. The porch has a shed roof with a cross gable on the south end, round wood columns, stone piers, capitals and half-wall railings. The north elevation has stone on the first floor and brick on the second floor; the south elevation is all brick. The windows on the side elevations have stone sills and arched brick lintels. There is a 1 story frame rear addition and a 1-story, 1-car garage to the west of the house.

This one-story Gothic Revival building has a stone foundation, rock-faced limestone walls, and a gable roof. The facade consists of two sections. The north side of the facade consists of a front-facing gable with a stepped parapet roofline, the main entrance to the building, a small 1/1 window on the first floor, and a pair of 1/1 windows in the gable end. The double doors of the entrance have three lancet panels with lancet panes above. A drip molding crowns the arched doorway. The words "FREE PUBLIC LIBRARY" are inscribed in the stone above the main entrance. On the south side of the facade, there are two groupings of 3 1/1 windows. Each grouping is topped by a single rectangular transom. Two eyebrow windows are located on the cross-gable roof above the south side of the facade. A smooth, cut-stone water table runs around the building between the first floor and the basement, which is partially above ground. The interior of the building contains the original oak bookcases and shelving, stained glass windows in the reading room, and retains its original floorplan. A modern, but sensitive addition to the building has been constructed within the last ten years on the east side of the building.
Description
This 2-story house has a stone foundation, brick walls, a gable roof and a full-width front porch. The one-story, front porch is not original; it has a flat roof, wrought iron posts on the first floor and metal railings on the first floor and on the roof. In the north bay of the 3-bay facade, the main entrance on the first floor has double doors and rectangular transom. On the second floor, the north bay contains a tall 4/4 window which has a movable sill so that it can be used as a door. The center and south bays of the facade have stacked double-hung windows. Some windows have 4-lite sash and others have a single pane of glass in each sash. The windows on the facade have pedimented lintels. The windows and wood storm windows throughout the house are early or original. A wide wood frieze board with dentils wraps around the front and side elevations at the roofline. There are two 2-story, rear ell/additions. The ell attached directly to the rear elevation of the house is brick; the addition attached to the west side of the rear ell is frame. A one-story, L-shaped ceramic block and frame outbuilding with a gable roof is located to the northwest of the house.

Photos/Site Plan

The plan shows the location and layout of the building at 202 North Third Street, with the street names Tennessee and N. Third St. marked on the drawing.
This two-story, Gabled Ell house has a stone foundation, brick walls, and early or original 4/4 windows. The L-shaped house has two windows on each floor of the front facing gable wing. The windows have hooded brick lintels and stone sills. There is an oculus window surrounded by decorative brickwork in the gable ends. The side gable wing on the south end of the facade has two bays. The south bay has two windows stacked on the first and second floors; the north bay has a door on each floor. The windows and doors have hood brick lintels. The doors have 2-lite transoms. The front porch, which extends across the side-gable wing has chamfered wood posts, scroll cut railings around the porch and the roof, and decorative fretwork and brackets around the roofline. There is a two-story deck and a 1-story addition with metal siding on the rear elevation of the house.

This large 2 1/2-story house has a stone foundation, stone walls, a hip roof and a 3-story tower. It is one of three almost identical houses on N. Third Street. The two other houses are located just to the north of this house. The facade of the house consists of two bays plus the corner tower, which is located on the south end of the facade. The 3-story, 6-sided tower is stone on the first and second floors and frame with decorative shingles on the third floor. The roof is conical and there are three 1/1 windows on each level of the tower. The south bay on the facade has stacked 1/1 windows. The north bay contains a main entrance and 1/1 window on the first floor and 1/1 window on the second floor. The front porch extends across the two bays on the facade. It has a square stone columns, stone piers, a flat roof. On the roof of the porch, a simple wood railing is reinforced by square stone piers that match the columns on the first floor. A front facing cross gable is centered over the north bay of the facade. It has decorative shingles, bargeboards and crossbracing. The side and rear elevations of the house are constructed of brick. Windows on the side and rear elevations have arched brick lintels and stone sills. There is a 2-story, frame, bay window with a gable roof on the south elevation. It has clipped corners, decorative fretwork and singles in the gable end. A 1-story screened-in porch on the east end of the south elevation has a stone foundation, square wood columns and a wood railing around the roof. The porch was added in the late-twentieth century. To the east of the house, a modern three-car, frame garage has vinyl siding and a side-facing gable roof.

Description

This 2-story, 3-bay, Italianate house has a stone foundation, brick walls and a side facing gable roof. The facade is dominated by a two-story gable-roofed, pedimented portico. The portico has round wood columns, a wide frieze and a dentilled cornice. In the center bay, the front door is topped by an arched transom and an arched surround of sidelights. Above the main entrance, the paired windows on the second floor have arched cast iron frames filled with 2/2 sash. The top sash has an arched top and arched mullions. Below the windows is a moveable panel which allows access to a small wrought-iron balcony in front of the windows. In the north and south bays, pairs of 2/2 windows are stacked on the first and second floors. These windows are identical in design to those in the center bay with the exception of cast iron sills in place of the wood panel. Large scrolled brackets are equally spaced across the facade and side elevations at the roofline. Above the windows on the facade, dentils replace the brackets. Brick pilasters are located between the bays on the facade and at the ends of the front elevation. Windows on the side elevations have simple cast iron frames. A 1-story brick, hip-roofed garage is located in the far northeast corner of the lot. A small 1-story brick cottage with a hip roof is located to the west of the house.

Description:

This complex consists of two 2 1/2 story, mirror-image houses that have been connected with a small two-story brick addition and converted into apartments. Both houses have stone foundations, stone facades, hip roofs. The facade of each house has a corner tower and two bays. The six-sided towers have stone walls, three 1/1 windows on each level and conical roofs. The tower on the south house is 2 1/2 stories tall; the tower on the north house is only 2 stories tall. Each house has a one-story porch covered the two bays on the front elevation. Each house also has front-facing cross gable which spans across two thirds of the facade; it has decorative shingles in the gable end. Each house has brick walls on the side and rear elevations and each has a two-story three-sided bay window with a gable roof on the side elevation. Windows on the side and rear elevations have arched brick lintels and stone sills. There are exterior staircases on the side and rear elevations of the complex. The houses have been joined since the early twentieth century.

Description

This highly intact 2-story Victorian-style house has a stone foundation, weatherboard siding and a steeply-pitched compound-gable roof. The side-walls of the second floor follow the pitch of the front gable. The house also has two cross gables that have compound pitch rooflines. All of the gable ends have decorative shingles; the front gable end is also decorated with a fan-shaped medallion. The front porch, which extends across the full width of the facade, has a curved center section, round wood columns and a simple wood railing. A simple wood railing with square wood piers runs around the flat roof of the porch. The facade consist of two bays n the first floor. A large 1/1 window is centered in the south bay; the front door and a 1/1 window are located in the north bay. A grouping of three double-hung windows is centered on the second floor of the facade. The top sash of each window has a diamond pattern; the lower sash has a single pane of glass. To the west of the house, there is a 1-story L-shaped outbuilding with a gable roof and weatherboard siding.

Description: This 2-story Queen Anne style house has a stone foundation, weatherboard siding and steeply pitched hip roof with front and side cross gables. The front cross gable has a pair of 1/1 windows stacked on the first and second floor. Each window has a 4-light wood storm window. There is decorative woodwork in the bulkheads below the windows. The triple window in the gable end has a vent in the center opening and single pane sash in the smaller flanking openings. The gable ends on the front and side have decorative shingles and crossbracing. The main entrance, which is sheltered by a 1-story porch has a single door flanked by a rectangular transom and sidelights. The door and the storm door are early or original. The porch has turned wood posts and turned beams that extend between the posts, scroll-cut arches between the posts, a wood railing, scroll cut brackets at the roofline and a flat roof. There is a 1-story, 3-sided bay window on the south elevation. It has a flat roof with a wood railing. Recessed porches on the side elevations have turned wood posts and spindlerwork trim. A 1 1/2 story, 1-car carriage house/garage is located to the east of the house. It has board and batten siding, and a standing seam gable roof with a cupola vent.

Description
This 2-story, Italianate house has a stone foundation, brick walls, and a side-gable roof. Two bays of the 5-bay facade are contained within a projecting cross gable front wing. Each of these two bays has a window opening stacked on the first and second floors. Each opening has an arched brick lintel and a stone lugsill. The two lower windows have been infilled with brick and are covered with early or original wood shutters. The two windows on the second floor have 2/2 sash. There are two doors in the center bay, one on each floor. Both doors have arched brick lintels and arched transoms. Each of the two southern bays on the facade have a 2/2 window stacked on each level. The front porch is missing from the facade, but a concrete foundation and a ledger board on the first floor shows that it once spanned across the center and south bays on the facade. A wide frieze board with scroll cut brackets extends around the facade at the roofline. Several brackets and much of the soffit is missing on the front elevation. The original rear gallery on the house is also missing. The two story brick rear ell is encased in overgrowth. A 2-story gable-roofed garage with board and batten siding and hinged wood doors is located to the west of the house.

Description: This large 2-story house has a dressed stone foundation, brick walls and a low pitched, flattened hip roof with the base for a widow's walk. On the first floor, the 5-bay symmetrical facade has a door in the center bay and a large, 6/6 window in each of the other bays. The front door is flanked by 6-litl rectangular sidelights. The central bay front porch has a stone foundation, paired round columns with Ionic capitals and a flat roof. The fenestration pattern of the second floor of the facade is identical to the first floor, but the door in the center bay is smaller and has 3-lite sidelights. Windows on the front and side elevations are early or original and have stone lintels and sills. A corbelled chimney pierces the south slope of the roof. A wide frieze board with small, simple brackets runs around the front and side elevations at the roofline. The 2-story, L-shaped rear ell has an enclosed 2-story gallery on the south side. A wrought iron fence, which sits on a stone retaining wall, runs along the south and west sides of the property.

This 2-story, 3-bay, brick house has been significantly altered with the addition of a 2-story portico across the front elevation and a 1-story side addition. On the first floor, the 3-bay facade features the main entrance in the south bay and a tall double-hung window in each of the other bays. The main entrance is composed of a single door recessed into a paneled rectangular opening and surrounded by a rectangular transom and sidelights. The windows have early or original 4/4 sash. The second floor of the facade has the same fenestration pattern as the first floor. A small balcony in front of the second floor doorway has a metal balcony. Both the windows and doors on the facade are set into molded frames. The 2-story portico has full height square wood columns and a gable roof. The side addition is brick and has a flat roof. On the facade of the addition, which is set in line with the facade of the main part of the house, there is a door on the north end and a 3-sided bay window with a hip roof on the south end. A wood railing surrounds the roof of the addition. There are several frame rear additions including an attached 2-car garage.

This 2-story Queen Anne house has a stone foundation, brick walls and a hip roof with front and side cross gables. On the north side of the facade, a 2-story, 3-sided projecting bay window set beneath the front cross gable has clipped corners, 1/1 windows with arched brick lintels and cast iron sills. On the south side of the facade, the wraparound porch has been partially enclosed. The section sheltering the front entrance is still open and has simple square wood posts, but the portion that wraps around to the side elevation has been enclosed with wide weatherboard siding. The front entrance features a double door with a rectangular 3-lite transom. Above the porch, a 1/1 window is centered on the second floor on the south side of the facade. Below the first floor windows, there are inset brick panels and a brick stringcourse runs above and below the second floor windows. There is a 1 1/2-story brick rear ell on the east elevation, and a 1-story screened in porch on the north elevation. The gable ends of the projecting cross gables have decorative bargeboards, crossbracing and brackets.
Description

This 1 1/2-story, frame house originally faced N. Third Street, but the front door now faces Washington Street. The house has three 1-story frame additions to the east elevation. The house and additions have gabled roofs and are covered with vinyl siding. A 3-sided rectangular bay window with a hip roof is centered on the west elevation, the original facade of the house. However, there is no door on this elevation. Two of the frame additions have gable roofs and are attached in tandem to the east elevation. There is also a shed roofed addition which sits in front of the first addition. A modern wood deck runs across the south side of the two gable-roofed additions. A 1-story, 2-car garage with vinyl siding and a gable roof is located east of the house.

Description: This 2 1/2-story Foursquare has a stone foundation, brick walls and a hip roof. The facade has an asymmetrical fenestration pattern. The front door and the door directly above it on the second floor are located slightly off-center. To the north and south of the doors, there is a 9/9 window stacked on each end of the facade. However, these windows are not equidistant from the ends of the facade. The windows have replacement sash and stone lugsills. The full-width front porch has square wood columns that sit on large brick piers, a simple wood railing and a flat roof. Center on the front slope of the roof is a hip-roof dormer. It has a row of three 4-light hinged windows. There is also an identical dormer on the north elevation. An integral brick chimney is located on the south wall of the house.

This large 2 1/2 story Queen Anne house has a stone foundation, brick walls and a hip roof. The facade is dominated by a 2-story projecting front wing with a gable roof. This wing has clipped corners. Each facet of the wing has a 1/1 window on each of the two levels. An oculus window is centered in the gable end, which is sheathed with decorative shingles. Main entry to the house is through an open front porch with round wood columns, a wide frieze board, and a simple wood railing. A wood balustrade runs around the roof of the porch. The front door is flanked by sidelights and a fan-shaped transom. The door on the second floor, which leads out to the roof of the front porch has sidelights and a rectangular transom. A gable roofed dormer is centered over the two doors on the facade. A 1-story rectangular bay with a flat roof topped by a wood balustrade is located at the southwest corner of the house. A wide frieze board with egg and dart molding wraps around the house at the roofline. The house has three corbelled brick chimneys. There is a two-story, frame sleeping porch on the rear elevation.
Description: This 2-story house has a stone and concrete foundation, vinyl siding and a hip roof. The facade of the house consists of a 2-story projecting front wing with a hip roof and a 1-story enclosed front porch. A pair of 1/1 windows are centered on each level of the projecting wing. The porch has large square wood columns. The space between the columns has been filled with four light windows and a door with a rectangular transom. A one-story freestanding carport with weaved 1x6 siding is located north of the house.

Description
This 1 1/2 story house has a stone foundation, brick walls and a front facing gable roof. The south bay of the 2-bay space features a 1/2 width recessed porch. The porch is recessed under the main roofline of the house, has square brick posts and half-walls and the framing for screens, but no screening fills the openings. The two doors that open onto the front porch are early or original and have arched brick lintels and rectangular transoms. A pair of 1/1 windows is centered in the north bay. The windows have arched brick lintels. Centered in the gable end is a 2-lite window with a decorative oriel base and an ornate projecting entablature with narrow brackets. The gable end is sheathed with fishscale shingles. Two dormers, located on the south slope of the roof, have hip roofs, 8/1 windows and weatherboard siding.

Description: This 2 1/2 story Foursquare house has a concrete foundation, brick walls and a hip roof with wide eaves and exposed rake tails. The full-width front porch has brick piers with stone caps, square brick posts, a wide cornice with foliate brackets and a paneled wood ceiling. The ceiling extends down to form a decorative lintel over the main entrance in the south bay. The main entrance features a 3/4 view door flanked by wide, multipane sidelight panels. On the north side of the facade the porch shelters a large 1/1 window. The second floor of the facade has the same fenestration pattern as the first floor. The door in the south bay is flanked by multipane sidelight panels. The window in the north bay has 1/1 sash. A metal railing runs around the perimeter of the porch roof. Windows throughout the house have stone lugsills. Each slope of the roof is punctuated by a dormer. Each dormer has a hip roof and a pair of double-hung windows with starburst patterned muntins in the top sash. A 1-car garage is located in the basement level of the house and is entered on the north elevation. A small modern outbuilding is located to the west of the house.

Description
This 1-story Craftsman style Bungalow has a concrete foundation, wide weatherboard siding and a side gable roof. The house sits high above street level. A wide, steep staircase leads up to the front porch from the sidewalk. The stairs are concrete and are flanked by rubble stone railings. A rubble stone retaining wall runs along the south and west sides of the property and along the driveway on the north side of the house. A small rubble stone archway leads from the driveway up to the north side of the house. The full-width front porch has two square tapered rubble rock posts and two square wood posts. A half wall railing around the porch is also constructed of rubble stone. The porch has a shed roof with a large, off-center, front-facing cross gable. A smaller cross gable is centered on the main roofline at the ridge. The facade consists of two unequal bays. The main entrance and two 3/1 Craftsman-style windows are equally spaced under the large cross gable on the south end of the facade. In the smaller north bay, a secondary entrance is flanked by 3/1 Craftsman-style windows. A square, tapered, external chimney constructed of rubble rock is located on the south elevation. A 1-car garage is located in the basement on the north side of the house.

Description:
This 1 1/2 story Gabled Ell house has a concrete foundation, weatherboard siding and small front porch with a hip roof. The front porch which fills the corner between the projecting front wing and the main block of the house, has narrow round columns and a simple wood railing. A small vestibule with a corner entrance is located beneath the front porch. On the facade of the projecting wing, there is a large, 1/1 window on the first floor and a small 1/1 window in the gable end. A small, 1-story, rectangular bay window on the south elevation has a shed roof and weatherboard siding. Two frame additions are located on the west elevation. One is one story tall; the other is two stories tall. The two story addition appears to consists of an enclosed porch on the 1st floor and an frame addition above. The second floor may have originally been a sleeping porch. The two story addition has vinyl siding and a flat roof. A 1-story, 1-car frame garage with an attached 1-car carport is located to the west of the house. The garage has narrow weatherboard siding and a gable roof; the carport has plywood siding and a flat roof.

Description
This 1 1/2 story Gable Front house has been encased in vinyl siding and has lost all of its defining features. A projecting vestibule with a gable roof dominates the south side of the facade. The main entrance, which is centered on the west wall of the vestibule is sheltered by a metal awning. Metal awnings also cover the two windows on the facade. A small 8/1 window is located to the south of the vestibule and a grouping of three 8/1 windows is located on the north end of the facade. There is a small 6/1 window in the gable end. Windows on the side elevations have vinyl shutters.

History

Constructed in 1907 by the Chicago & Alton Railroad, the building ceased active passenger operations in 1960 and was allowed to sit vacant and deteriorate. In the 1970s, the building was sold to a private individual who made some partial roof repairs and used the station as a temporary residence. However, the building has sat vacant for many years.

Description
This 1-story depot has a red brick veneer base, stucco paneled wall sections with wood battens, and a gabled hip roof. All of the window openings have been boarded over. The central section of the building contains an office/ticket counter with segregated men's and women's waiting areas flanking it. The side pavilions contain freight or baggage areas. Much of the original interior woodwork, wainscoting, windows, and floor plan remain intact, although in a deteriorated state due to age and water damage.

History
Constructed in 1907 by the Chicago & Alton Railroad, the building ceased active passenger operations in 1980 and was allowed to sit vacant and deteriorate. In the 1970s, the building was sold to a private individual who made some partial roof repairs and used the station as a temporary residence. However, the building has sat vacant for many years.

This 2 1/2 story Queen Anne house has a stone foundation, weatherboard and cedar shake siding and a hip roof. The facade features a large wraparound porch and a two-story projecting front wing. The porch has round wood columns, scroll cut wood railings and a hip roof. The front door located under the porch has a rectangular transom. Next to the front door, there is a small rectangular leaded glass window. Above the porch on the second floor of the facade, there is a three-sided bay window. The projecting wing has a gable roof, decorative shingles in the gable end and paired 1/1 windows centered on each floor. Windows throughout have early or original 1/1 sash. A three-story tower is located in the center of the south side elevation. The tower is round, has patterned shingle siding and a conical roof. There is a 1-story shed with metal siding and a gable roof southwest of the house.

Description
This 2-story I-house has a stone foundation, brick walls and a side-facing gable roof. The five bay facade has a door in the center bay and a 4/4 window in each of the other bays. The second floor of the facade has the same fenestration. Windows on the facade have cast iron pedimented lintels and cast iron sills. The main entrance on the first floor has a rectangular transom and sidelights; the doorway on the second floor of the facade is filled with double door and a rectangular transom. The 1-story front porch spans across the three center bays. It has a stone foundation, paired square wood columns, simple wood railings and a flat roof. A simple wood railing also runs around the roof of the porch. A wide brick frieze with dentils runs across the facade. The frieze extends horizontally a short distance onto the gable ends and diagonally up the pitch of the roofline. There are integral corbelled chimneys on the gable ends. The two story rear ell has brick walls and a gabled roof. There is also a 2 story frame addition to the rear ell and an attached three car garage. The house sits high above the street. A stone retaining wall runs along the west side of the property.

Description

This is one of a pair of matching 2-story houses located side by side. This house is located on the northwest corner of N. Seventh Street and Kentucky. The other house is located just to the north. Both houses have 2-story projecting front wings and a small 1-story porch on the facade. The porches have hip roofs and turned wood posts. The porch in the house at 202 N. Seventh has been enclosed. Both houses have a mix of 1/1 and 2/2 windows. The window on first floor of the projecting front wing is larger than all of the other windows and it has an arched brick lintel. The other windows have cast iron pedimented lintels and cast iron sills. Both houses have a 1-story, shed roofed side addition with weatherboard siding. The gable ends of both houses have decorative fishscale shingles.

Description: This 1 1/2 story Craftsman Bungalow has a rough stone foundation, buff-colored brick walls and a side-facing gable roof with wide eaves. The eaves have exposed beams on the gable ends. The 3-bay facade has a central door flanked by pairs of 8/1 windows. The window and the door have stone lintels; the windows also have stone sills. The full-width front porch is recessed under the main roofline of the house. It has square brick piers, large round wood columns and a simple wood railing. A large dormer is centered on the front elevation. It has weatherboard siding, four 6/6 windows grouped in a single opening on the front elevation and a hip roof with wide eaves and exposed rafter tails. An integral brick chimney is located on the south elevation. The house sits high above street level. A stone retaining wall with a concrete cap runs along the east and north sides of the property. Concrete steps lead up to the house from the sidewalk. Square stone piers with concrete caps and decorative stone finials flank the steps.

Description: This 1 1/2-story house has a concrete foundation, weatherboard siding and a front-facing gambrel roof. The two-bay facade has a 1/2 width recessed front porch in the east bay and a centered window in the west bay. The porch has large square wood posts, pointed arches between the posts and a simple wood railing. The two doors and a large window are sheltered by the porch. The window has a small 12-lite top sash and a large single pane bottom sash. The window centered in the east bay of the facade is also a 12/1 unit. A pair of 8/1 windows are centered in a rectangular recessed opening in the gable end. The gable end is sheathed with cedar shakes. A shed-roofed dormer is centered on the east and west elevations and two chimneys pierce the ridge of the roof north and south of the centerline. The house is located on a steeply sloping lot. As a result, the basement level of the house is above grade on the east, west, and south elevations.

Significance: Architecture

This 1 1/2 story Queen Anne has a stone foundation, weatherboard siding and a hip roof. The facade consists of a projecting front wing and a one-story, front porch. The front wing has a gable roof, a double hung window centered on the first floor and a single light fixed window in the gable end. The upper sash of the window on the first floor has a square pane of glass surrounded by small square panes of colored glass. The lower sash has a single pane of glass. The window has pedimented wood trim. The gable end is sheathed with decorative shingles. The front porch has turned wood posts, a spindle railing and spindle bracing between the posts and a shed roof. Beneath the porch are the front door, which has a rectangular transom, and a large 1/1 window. On the west end of the facade, the corner is clipped and forms the south side of a three-sided bay window on the west elevation. The clipped corner has scrollwork brackets and a turned pendant. A square chimney pierces the roof at the peak of the hip roof.

| Construction Date | 1/2-story house has a stone foundation, brick walls and a gable roof. The facade consists of a projecting front wing with a front facing gable roof and a side wing with a 2-story front porch. The projecting front wing has three bays. The main entrance is located on the first floor of the south bay and a 21/2 window is stacked above it on the second floor. The door is slightly recessed into an arched framed opening. The door is surrounded by grooved pilasters on the sides and a fanlight transom above. The center and north bays on the facade of the front projecting wing have a 2/2 window stacked on the first and second floor. Each of these windows has a framed arched opening, like that around the main entrance and each has a bracketed cast iron sill. An oculus window is centered in the gable end. The facade of the side wing features a door and a window on each level. These openings have the same framed detailing as the fenestration on the front wing. A 2-story porch with square wood posts detailed with simple wood moldings covers the facade of the side wing and is recessed beneath the main roofline of the house. A wide, wood frieze board with paired brackets and dentils runs along the roofline of the front and side elevations. To the south of the house is a 1-story brick building with a gable roof. The house has a t-shaped plan and may have served a slave quarters or the summer kitchen. It appears to predate the main house. The window and door openings are topped with flat stone lintels. The doors have rectangular transoms. Parts of the wood frieze board and some of the scroll cut brackets are still in place on the north elevation. Also to the south of the house is a small barn with wood siding and a gambrel roof. A small frame gable roofed outbuilding is located to the east of the house. |

Description: This 2-story Queen Anne house has a stone foundation, weatherboard and shingle siding, and a hip roof with cross gables on the front (north) and west elevations. The house sits on the southeast corner of South Carolina and South 24th Street. The main entrance is set on the diagonal on the northwest corner of the house. The front door is flanked by 1/1 windows. The front door and the two windows are located under the 1-story wraparound porch which projects out in front of the main block of the house. A projecting one-story front wing with a shed roof is attached to the west end of the porch. Three 1/1 windows are set into a single opening on the facade of this projecting wing. A door in the east end of this wing leads out to the front porch. On the second floor, the 1/1 window are grouped in pairs and are located partially in the gable ends. The wood lintels have dentil molding. Pent roof sections flank the second floor windows. There is an enclosed 1-story porch with a shed roof on the rear elevation. A well pump is located in the front yard.

Description:

This 2-story frame Carpenter Gothic house has a foundation covered with pressed tin, weatherboard siding and a steeply pitched gable roof. The facade features a projecting front wing with a steeply pitched gable roof and a 1-story front porch with flat roof. On the facade of the front wing, a tall multipaned window is centered on the first floor and a 2/2 window with an arched transom is centered on the second floor. Both windows have drip mold lintels. The gable end has large scrollcut scalloped bargeboards. Under the front porch, there are two doors and two windows. One door is the main entrance into the house; the second door is located in the side of the front wing. The window are very tall, almost floor to ceiling. Both the doors and windows have drip mold lintels. Above the porch, there is a small steeply pitched cross gable. An arched top french door is centered in the gable end. The gable end has decorative bargeboards.

Description
This 2-story house is probably the largest residential building in Louisiana. It has a six-bay symmetrical facade. The two in bays have a door on the first floor and a 6/6 window on the second floor. The other four bays each have a 6/6 window on the first and second floors. The windows on the front and side elevations have cast iron entablatures and lugsills. The full width front porch has large square brick columns and a shed roof with a centered cross gable. The gable end is decorated with three simple brackets. The porch was probably added in the early 20th century. The house has two rear additions. A 2-story brick rear addition runs across the rear elevation of the house. It has three equally spaced 6/6 windows on each level. The windows are set into arched brick openings. A 2-story frame addition with a shed roof is attached to the south side of the brick addition. To the east of the house, there is a small, 2-story building. It has brick walls and a gable roof. On the facade, it has a door and a storefront window with a wood bulkhead. A small shed roofed frame awning extends across this opening. On the second floor, there is an large opening which has three narrow 1-light windows in a wood paneled frame.

History
This house was constructed ca. 1840 by William Luce for his daughter, Mrs. Archibald Van Horn. It was used as a school in the 1890s and converted to a duplex in 1919.

The top two stories of this three-story commercial building are covered with vinyl siding. Based on a 1979 photo of the building, one-third of the building on the east side has been removed. On the first floor, the storefront, which has wood-paneled bulkheads and wood windows with transoms, is mostly intact. There is also a door leading to the upper stories on the west end of the facade. That doorway has been modified with a shorter door topped by an air-conditioning unit.

History
- City Directory - John P. Dann, boarding
- 1876 BirdsEye - building is in place, 3 stories tall
- 1885 Sanborn - "Dann House"
- 1979 Inventory Form - shows this building with an additional front bay.

This one-story brick commercial building was originally a three-story building. It now has an odd stepped roofline on the facade and a shed roof. The three-bay storefront has a recessed central entrance and windows that have been infilled with wood. The storefront's original cast iron columns are still in place.

History

1876 Bird's Eye - 3 story building in place
1885 Sanborn - grocery with telephone office on upper floors

Description

This 4-story rectangular building has a concrete foundation, stone and brick walls, a flat parapet roof, and a rigidly symmetrical facade. The 1st and 2nd floor walls of the building are stone veneer; the 3rd and 4th floors have brick veneer walls. The 5-bay facade is delineated with stone pilasters that run from the top of the second floor to the wide stone frieze at the roofline. The center bay of the facade has a projecting 1-story wing on the first floor which may have originally served as the entrance vestibule for the hotel. This wing has a flat roof surrounded by a metal railing. On the second floor, the formal main entrance for the building is located in the center bay and is flanked by 1/1 windows with arched top sash. The door has a brick surround that is outlined with stone dentiled molding. A stone entablature with stone urns caps the entrance. Above the entrance, a stone plaque commemorates the two major donors of funds for the building - Otis Smith and Susannah Barr. Windows on the second floor of the facade have arched openings and arched top sash. A wide frieze board runs around the front and sides of the building at the roofline. A modern elevator tower has been constructed on the east elevation of the building and a large three story addition is attached to the rear elevation of the building. The addition is a brick building with no ornamentation except for a stone belt course between the first and second floors and above the third floor windows. On the roof the rear addition, there is an addition with metal walls and a metal roof.

History

The Pike County Hospital was completed in 1928. It was funded from two bequests - one from Susannah Barr and the other main donation was from Otis Smith - and from subscriptions. The cost of the building was $156,000 and consisted of 64 beds. The rear addition, constructed in 1951. This hospital was replaced by the new hospital located just to the east in 1972 and in 1976, the original hospital was renovated opened as Smith Barr Manor Nursing Home.

Description

This former tourist court consists of 16 buildings, 6 trailer/mobile homes and a historic sign. The complex is now used for permanent and transient housing; it does not appear to operate as a motel anymore. At the front of the complex, a one-story commercial building, which probably once served as a restaurant is attached to a 1-story duplex which once served as the motel office/owners residence. The commercial building is constructed of brick and has a stepped roofline and large plate glass windows on the facade. The window openings on the side elevation are filled with glass block. The duplex, which is attached to the east side of the commercial building has permastone on the facade and brick on the side elevations. The facade has 1/1 windows in the outer bays and a door in each inner bay. A barrel vault shaped stoop cover shelters the two inner bays on the facade. An early or original sign sits in front of the restaurant and office buildings. The metal sign has lightbulb sockets outlining the words "Champ Clark" and running along the arrow design pointing towards the motel. To the north and west of the restaurant and office/duplex buildings are seven frame cabins, one frame duplex, two brick veneer duplexes, and one brick veneer triplex. The frame cabins have wood siding, clipped gable roofs and 3/1 windows. The frame duplex has asphalt shingle siding, 3/1 windows and a clipped gable roof. The brick duplexes and triplex have 3/1 windows and clipped gable roofs. A brick outbuilding is located in the northwest corner of the property. A frame shed is north of the office/duplex. A concrete-block garage with a gable roof is located to the east of the office/duplex. Six trailer/mobile homes are located in the northeast corner of the property.

Description: This 2-story Beaux-Arts building has a stone foundation, brick walls and a flat parapet roof. Each of the bays on the seven-bay facade is delineated by a pair of brick pilasters with stone bases and capitals. The pilasters run from the base of the building to the wide frieze that runs along the roofline of the building. The center bay on the facade contains the main entrance to the building. The entrance is detailed with double doors, a large fanlight transom and an arched entry canopy which is supported on paired columns. Each of the outer bays contains a large double-hung window, flanked by rectangular sidelights and topped by a large Palladian window. The 1st bays on the side elevations contain the same window groupings. The four inner bays are each filled with a large double hung window on each floor. The first floor windows have 12/18 sash and the second floor windows have 12/12 sash.

History: This building is the most publicly identified building with the Stark Brothers Nursery. It is part of a very large complex of buildings which are laid out on several hundred acres of land on the west end of the town of Louisiana, many of which are eligible for National Register listing.

This building was constructed in 1928 to house Luther Burbank's seed and bulb business which was acquired by Stark Bros. after Burbank's death. Stark Bros was chosen over Stanford Univ. and the Univ. of California to acquire Burbank's business and to continue his work experimenting with seed and bulb hybridization.

Significance: Commerce, Architecture, Agriculture

This 3-story school building has a stone foundation, brick walls and a flat parapet roof. The three bay facade has a projecting central bay. The entrance on the first floor of the center bay is surrounded by a classical pedimented entablature and round columns; both of which are stone. Each of the outer bays has two large window openings on each floor. Each of these openings has been infilled with plywood and small 1/1 windows. A stone belt course wraps around the building above the third floor windows and a stone cornice with dentils wraps around the building two feet below the roofline. The Rowley Annex is attached to the west elevation of the original school building. It is two stories tall and has a symmetrical three-bay facade with a projecting central bay. The center bay contains the main entrance which has double doors, rectangular sidelights and a large carved stone frieze. On the second floor, an original 6-lite steel casement window with a rectangular transom is still intact. The outer bays of the annex have one large rectangular opening and one smaller window opening on each floor. All of the window openings in the outer bays have been infilled with wood and smaller double-hung windows. A flat band of stone caps the facade of the building. At the back of the annex is a two story gymnasium with a barrel vault roof.

This two-story, brick, L-shaped house has a five-bay facade, a central bay porch and a hip roof. The porch has a flat roof and round wood columns that sit on a stone railing. The house’s 1/1 and 2/2 windows are early or original. The one-story rear addition has a gable roof and brick walls. There is a small, shed-roofed brick side addition attached to the west side of the rear addition. The large house appears to now be used as a rooming house.

Description: This two-story, brick, commercial building has been converted to residential use. The building has a four-bay facade which includes a storefront and a door to the second floor. The storefront has been modified with double hung windows and a new door. The transoms have also been covered over, but general character of the storefront and the openings remain intact. The second floor of the facade features three windows and a door opening that has been filled with a single piece of glass. The roofline of the facade is stepped, but the building’s newer gable roof is visible behind the original roof. The two story side ell has a garage door on the first floor and a window on the second floor.

Property address also includes 116 North Main Street. This two-story, brick, commercial building has a five-bay arcade. On the first floor, there is a storefront with a central entrance flanked by large windows, a set of hinged garage doors and the entrance to the second floor of the building. A large wood lintel runs continuously across the first floor of the facade above all of the window and door openings. The second floor has two windows on each side of the facade flanking a centered door. The window openings on the second floor have arched brick tops. A brick cornice extends across the north side of the building; the south side of the facade has no cornice. All of the windows on the south elevation have been boarded up. A large portion of the south wall has been repaired with new bricks.

Description

This large brick building sits on the corner of North Main Street and Tennessee. It consists of two sections - a two-story section on the south and a three-story section on the north. However, there is no break in the masonry to indicate that the building was constructed in phases. The two-story section has a parapet roof with a brick corbel table; the three-story section has a stepped roofline and a gable roof. On the first floor of the facade, the south section has a garage door flanked by 4/1 windows and the north section has a garage door flanked by a pedestrian door and a window. There are six 4/1 windows on the second floor of the facade. The three windows on the south section are equally spaced; the three on the north side of the facade are irregularly spaced.

On the third floor of the north section, there are two 1/1 windows. There are two tandem rear additions to the building. Both of these additions have entrances on Tennessee. The two-story rear addition which is directly attached to the three-story main section of the building has brick walls and a gable roof. A smaller, one-story rear addition attached to the two-story addition, has a shed roof and contains three garage bays.

This large industrial building consists of two buildings, one that faces North Main Street and one that faces Water Street, which are connected by concrete rectangular water holding tanks. The public entrance to the facility is located in the one-story, three bay building which faces North Main Street. This building's three-bay facade features wide double doors flanked by large multi-light casement windows. The windows have stone lintels, sills and stone accent blocks in the top corners. The remnants of a stone wall and foundation are located on the south end of the lot near the sidewalk. The portion of the facility that faces Water Street is a 1 1/2 story brick building with a three bay facade. It has similar fenestration and decoration to the portion of the facility which faces North Main Street.

This building is currently being converted into two single-family live/work spaces.
Description: This two-story brick commercial building has a flat roof and three bay facade. On the first floor of the facade, the main entrance is flanked by a small 1/4 window and a large plate glass window. There are no window or door openings on the second floor of the facade. A concrete block addition to the facade forms an archway leading into the lumber yard, which has several corrugated metal sheds. Windows on the side elevations of the building have hooded brick lintels. The building also has two rear additions. The addition attached to the original building is frame with wood siding; the rear addition attached to the frame addition is corrugated metal.

History:

St. Louis and Alton Railroad. In 1882, G. A. Buffum bought the company from the Washburn estate. The company was incorporated in 1888 and built the general office building on North Main Street in 1910. Beginning in 1890, LaCrosse Lumber began establishing retail yards in several other communities. The company is still owned by the Buffum family.
The building's foundation is composed of rough stone blocks topped with a row of dressed stone blocks. At the corners of the building, there are brick pilasters with terra cotta Corinthian capitals. Above the pilasters, a brick corbel table wraps around the front and sides of the building. A wide wood cornice with dentils wraps around the front and sides of the building at the roofline. The windows on the side elevations are set in groups of three. Each window grouping is set in an opening with a single stone lintel and sill.

History

In 1873, Wisconsin Governor Cadwaller C. Washburn, with the financial assistance of several financiers from LaCrosse, Wisconsin, established LaCrosse Lumber Company in Louisiana. The governor's brother-in-law, G.A. Buffum, who had been sent down the Mississippi to find a location for a lumber mill, chose Louisiana because of its to the terminals of the Louisiana and Missouri River Railroad and the St. Louis and Alton Railroad. In 1882, G.A. Buffum bought the company from the Washburn estate. The company was incorporated.

Description
This two story brick I-House has been condemned by the city due to some structural problems. The house has a five bay facade. On the first floor, there are two door and three windows; the doors are located in the center and right center bays. The windows throughout the house are new 6/1, and the window trim has been covered with tin panning. On the second floor of the facade, a door in the center bay is flanked by 6/1 windows in each of the other bays. The two story central bay front porch has a shed roof, and wrought iron railings and post, which are not original. A two-story, bay window on the south elevation is three-sided and has 6/1 windows over paneled bulkheads. The house has a two story, L-shaped brick rear ell. A two story gallery runs along the south side of the rear ell and spans between the main portion of the house and the small “leg” of the rear ell.

This one and one-half story, frame house is an excellent example of Queen Anne styling. The house has a stone foundation, a hip roof with projecting cross gables, and weatherboard siding. Queen Anne features include projecting bay windows, clipped corners, and decorative shingles in the gable ends. The front porch, which covers 3/4 of the front elevation has unique round wood columns with narrow wood batten decoration and simple wooden railings. The windows in the projecting bays have wood paneled bulkheads and decorative lintel moldings.
Description: This one and one-half story Cape Cod house has a concrete foundation, a side-facing gable roof with front gable dormers and vinyl siding. The three-bay facade features a door flanked by 8/8 windows. There is an external brick chimney on the north gable end. The covered patio on the rear elevation has a flat roof and aluminum posts.

This two-story, L-shaped house has stone foundation, brick walls, a hip roof and Italianate detailing. It has a three-bay facade which features an off-center door and two windows. The front door has a rectangular transom and sidelights. The opening is supported by a stone lintel. The two windows on the first floor of the facade have stone lintels and sills and they have newer 6/6 windows. On the second floor of the facade, there are three equally-spaced doors. Each door has an arched brick top, which is filled by a fan-shaped transom. Each of the full-view doors has twenty small rectangular panes of glass. A full-width balcony runs across the second floor of the facade. The balcony is an early feature, but the railing is modern. The windows on the south elevation of the house and on the first floor of the north elevation have stone sills and lintels and 6/6 sash. These windows appear to be early or original. The windows on the second floor of the north elevation have stone sills, arched brick tops and fan-shaped transoms. A wide wood frieze with large scroll-cut brackets runs across the front and side elevations. The 1-story brick rear addition has a shed roof and a brick chimney. There is also a deck on the back of the house.

Description: This very-large, two-story house has a three-bay facade, a gable roof, a full-width front porch, and a unusual, second-floor tower on the south end of the facade. There is a corbelled chimney on the north gable end. The house is built on a lot which slopes steeply up to the north. It has a basement which is fully-exposed on the south, east and west elevations. The house has a large L-shaped, rear ell which is two stories tall plus the exposed basement level and it has a one-story ell/ addition attached to the west side of the rear ell. A wide staircase in the center of the facade leads up from the sidewalk to the first floor. The first floor of the facade has a door with a rectangular transom in the south bay, and a window in the central and north bays. There are three equally-spaced windows on the second floor, which are in line with the openings on the first floor. Each of the windows on the facade has 1/1 sash and shutters. The front porch has wrought iron posts and railings which are not original. The porch has a flat roof with a wrought iron railing. The second-floor tower features a three-sided bay window which projects out from east corner of the south elevation of the house and a conical roof which projects above the main roofline of the house. On the south elevation of the rear ell, there is a 3-story gallery (basement, plus 2 stories). The gallery features square wood posts and a high detailed railing with small scroll cut arches between the balusters. The one-story rear ell/addition has an above-ground basement, a hipped roof, weatherboard siding and a three-sided bay window on the south elevation.

Description

This two-story brick house with a three-story tower is one of the most elaborate and highly intact Italianate houses in Louisiana. The three-bay facade is dominated by the central three-story square tower, which projects slightly in front of the facade of the house. The brick tower, which forms the center bay of the house, has a flat roof, brick pilasters, a paneled frieze board and scroll-cut brackets at the roofline. The main entrance is located on the first floor of the tower. This entrance has a large double door with a rectangular transom and sidelights and a cast iron, entablature with large brackets. On the second floor of the tower, there is a pair of 4/4 windows with arched transoms. The two windows, which are set side-by-side are set into a cast iron arched frame. A single cast iron sill runs beneath both windows. A grouping of three windows are centered on the third floor of the tower. Like the second floor windows, these windows are set into a single opening: each has an arched transom and a cast-iron arched frame and a single cast iron sill runs beneath all three windows. The north and south sides of tower have similar fenestration on the third floor where the tower extends above the main roofline of the house. Each of the outer bays of the facade has a pair of windows with a cast iron entablature with brackets and the pair is set into a cast-iron frame with a cast-iron sill. On the second floor, each bay on the facade contains a pair of windows with arched transoms set into cast-iron frames with cast-iron sills. At the roofline, a wide paneled wood frieze board runs around the house and is punctuated by large scroll-cut brackets. The windows in the first two bays on the side elevations are identical in design to those on the front elevation. Windows towards the back of the house lack the elaborate cast-iron detailing. The one-story brick rear ell is early or original. It has a flat roof, brick dentils at the roofline, a door with a rectangular transom.

Description

This is a 1 1/2-story bungalow with triple front gables. The house is covered with vinyl siding, but the siding is of a similar profile to the original weatherboards and the window trim is not covered. The gable-roofed front porch covers the north half of the facade. It has square tapered wood columns and a simple wood railing. The porch shelters the main entrance, which is centered on the facade and a pair of 3/1 windows. The house has wide eaves with decorative beams in the gable ends. The one-story side addition on the south elevation has a flat roof and vinyl siding. A one-story, two-car garage is located to the northeast of the house.

Description

This 2-story, 3-bay house was probably originally built as a duplex or multi-family residence. Recessed into the main entrance on the south end of the facade are two front doors. The two doors are set into a recessed opening under a single rectangular transom. There is a large 6/6 window in each of the other two bays on the first floor of the front elevation. The windows have dressed stone lintels and sills. The second floor of the facade has an identical fenestration pattern - an off-center door and two windows. However, the door on the second floor is not recessed. It is set into an opening with a dressed stone lintel. The one-story front porch extends across the facade and wraps around to the side elevation. The porch has large round wood columns that sit on brick piers, simple wood railings and a flat roof. The two windows on the first floor of the south elevation have been boarded up. The rear ell on the house is two stories tall plus the basement level which is exposed on the south elevation. It is L-shaped and is connected to the main portion of the house on the south side by a two story gallery, which has been enclosed. At the basement level, there is a small porch, identical in design to the front porch centered on the south elevation. There is a two-story, shed-roofed brick addition attached to the north side of the rear ell. A two-story, frame addition is attached to the west side of the side addition and a frame staircase runs up the outside of the brick addition on the north side. At the corners, the stone retaining wall that goes along the south and east sides of the property and the stone steps leading up to the house have decorative stone capitals.

Description
This 1 1/2 story, 3-bay, brick house has a stone foundation, a steeply-pitched side facing gable roof, and a full-width front porch. A steeply-pitched cross gable is centered on the front elevation and is flanked by shed dormers. On the first floor of the facade, the centrally-located front door is flanked by paired 4/4 windows. The front porch has tapered square wood columns, brick piers and railings, and a shed roof. Metal awnings wrap around the porch just below the roofline. The full-width front porch does not appear on the 1950 Sanborn so it must have been added in the mid- to late-twentieth century. The house has a one-story, ceramic block side addition and two one-story ceramic block rear additions. The attached one-story two-car carport on the south elevation has ceramic block walls and a gable roof.

Description: This 1 1/2 story house has a stone foundation, early or original weatherboard siding and a front facing gable roof. The front porch, which is recessed under the main roofline, covers two-thirds of the front elevation and wraps around to the south elevation. The porch has round wood columns and simple wood railings. The front door is centered on the facade under the porch and has a rectangular transom above it. On the north end of the facade, there is a three-sided bay window, which is also recessed under the main roofline. It has clipped corners decorated with scroll-cut brackets. A grouping of three 1/1 windows is centered in the gable end of the facade. A one-story, two-car frame garage is attached on the south elevation.

This 2-story, 3-bay Colonial Revival house has a concrete foundation, a side-facing gable roof and vinyl siding. Three gable-roofed side ell/additions and a 1 1/2 story gable-roofed garage are attached in tandem to the south elevation of the house. The 1-story rear addition has a shed roof. The side ell directly attached to the house may have been originally the garage. It has a multipaned, full-view door and an 8/12 window on the front elevation. The two additions between the main side ell and the garage appear to just be enclosed walkways between the house and garage. The garage has a side facing gable roof with a cupola and a two-car overhead, garage door. The facade of the house is symmetrical. On the first floor, the central door, which has a pedimented entablature and wood pilasters, is flanked by 8/12 windows. A large brick patio with a metal railing runs across the front of the house. On the second floor of the facade, there are three equally-spaced 8/12 windows.

1931 Sanborn - the house shown on this lot is only 1 1/2 stories
1937 Directory - Edwin J. Stark
1950 Sanborn - there is a 2-story house shown on this lot with an attached garage.

This house was originally built ca. 1910. It was rebuilt on the same foundation with the 2nd story in the 1930s after a fire.

This two-story Colonial Revival style house has a three-bay facade, a side-facing gable roof and vinyl siding. The first floor of the facade features a central entrance flanked by one-story, three-sided bay windows. The entrance is detailed with a pedimented entablature and pilasters. Each of the bay windows has two 4/6 windows flanking an 8/12 window and a standing seam hipped roof. A two-story portico with four, large round columns and a flat roof extends across the east elevation. There is also a large external chimney centered on the east elevation. The one-story rear addition has a flat roof and vinyl siding. The two-story side addition on the west elevation has vinyl siding and a gable roof and it contains a two-car garage.

Description

This 2-story I-house has a stone foundation, brick walls and a side-facing gable roof. The first floor of 4-bay facade features a door in each of the center bays and a 1/1 window in each of the outer bays. The doorway in the north inner bay is filled with a modern slab door; the doorway in the south inner bay has an early or original paneled wood door. The transoms above both doors are boarded over. On the second floor of the facade, there are three windows and a door. These openings are stacked in line with the openings on the first floor. The doorway is located in the inner bay on the north side of the facade. The windows and the second floor doorway have dressed stone lintels. The 1-story porch which shelters the two center bays on the facade has 4/4 posts, simple wood railings, and a shed roof. The porch has recently been constructed. A simple wood cornice with returns on the gable ends wraps around the house. The 2-story rear ell has brick walls, a gable roof and 1/1 windows with arched brick lintels. A stone retaining wall runs along the south side of the property.

Description
This 1 1/2-story Pyramid Square house has a stone foundation, weatherboard siding and a hip roof. It is located at the corner of N. Ninth Street and Tennessee. The primary elevations face Tennessee and the secondary elevation faces N. Ninth, but both elevations have identical fenestration - a door flanked by 1/1 windows. The front porch extends across the facade and wraps around the full depth of the secondary elevation. The porch, which is recessed under the roofline of the house, has round wood columns and simple wood railings. The north and west elevations have hip-roof dormers with paired 6-lite windows.

Description
This is a 2-story building with metal walls and a metal gable roof. The building encloses several large water tanks that were part of the municipal waterworks. A metal walkway on the second floor of the north elevation connects this building with the 2-story brick building to the north.

History
1950 Sanborn - this lot is vacant

Sources

Description: This 2-story industrial building has a concrete foundation, brick veneer walls and a flat roof. The main entrance is located on the south side of facade. It has metal slab doors and a concrete loading dock in front of it. The only other opening on the first floor of the facade is a small 4-lite casement window. There are two 4-lite casement windows on the second floor of the facade. These windows are set in line with the openings on the first floor of the facade. A metal walkway on the second floor of the south elevation connects this building with the 2-story metal building to the south.

History:
- Sanborn - "Clear Water Reservoir" tank shown

Description

This large industrial building consists of two buildings, one that faces North Main Street and one that faces Water Street, which are connected by concrete rectangular water holding tanks. The public entrance to the facility is located in the one-story, three bay building which faces North Main Street. This building’s three-bay facade features wide double doors flanked by large multi-light casement windows. The windows have stone lintels, sills and stone accent blocks in the top corners. The remnants of a stone wall and foundation are located on the south end of the lot near the sidewalk. The portion of the facility that faces Water Street is a 1 1/2 story brick building with a three bay facade. It has similar fenestration and decoration to the portion of the facility which faces North Main Street.

This building is currently being converted into two single-family live/work spaces.

History

1937 Sanborn - this lot is vacant
1937 Directory - City Water Works Pumping Station
1950 Sanborn - this building is in place, joined to building on N. Main Street with "Settling Basin," "Municipal Water Works"

This tiny 1-story, 2-bay single pen house is tucked between industrial buildings. The house has a stone foundation, brick walls, a side-facing gable roof and a full width front porch. A long, narrow addition extends across the rear elevation. The facade has a door in the north bay and a 6/6 window in the south bay. The front porch has brick piers, a slightly tapered square wood columns and a shed roof. There is a small brick outbuilding with a shed roof to the west of the house.

History
- 1876 Bird’s Eye - a different house is shown on this lot
- 1885 Sanborn - this building is in place with 1-story rear ell/addition, no front porch
- 1890 Sanborn - a second 1-story rear addition is in place, small
- 1-story outbuilding is located west of the house
- 1896 Sanborn - 2 different rear additions are shown replacing the original ell/additions
- 1902 Sanborn - no change to house, outbuilding is gone
- 1909 Sanborn - no change
- 1917 Sanborn - westernmost rear addition gone
- 1931 Sanborn - house is shown as much larger, but no breaks in buildings are shown, front and rear porches are in place, 1-story outbuilding is located west of the house
- 1937 Directory - Charles Heavner Boat Builder, Charles Heavner (owner), Frank Dillender
- 1950 Sanborn - 1-story addition to south side

Description
This industrial building consists of two sections; both of which are built into the hillside which rises up to the west. On the south side of the building is two stories tall; the north section is three stories tall. The first floor of both sections of the building is constructed of stone. A pair of large metal hinged doors are set into the south section; a roll-up garage door and a pedestrian door fill the north section. The second floor of the south section is constructed of brick and has three hinged doors grouped in a single opening. The 2-story section has a shed roof covered with corrugated tin. Tin also covers part of the second floor on the south elevation of the south section. The second and third floors of the three story north section are also constructed of brick. There is a window opening on each end of the facade on the second and third stories; all the openings are boarded over. The 3-story section of the building has a gable roof with a stepped profile roofline on the facade. Two window openings and a door on the second floor and four windows on the third floor are distributed across the north elevation of the north section of the building. A 1-story addition on the west end of the building has corrugated metal walls and a corrugated metal shed roof.

History
1876 Bird's Eye - a three story building is shown on this lot, but it has a different roofline and fenestration pattern on the facade.
1885 Sanborn - both sections of this building are in place, north section "cooper," south section "Shop, Storage, Rags," north section has 2 1-story rear ells.
1890 Sanborn - north section "Diamond Flour Mfg. Co., Grain Warehouse," large 1-story rear addition; south section "Vinegar Storage 1st, Cooper Shop 2nd, large 1-story rear addition.
1896 Sanborn - north section - "Grain Warehouse," south section - "Vinegar Storage basement, Cooper shop 1st (building is shown as 1 and 2-story sections with above ground basements)."
1902 Sanborn - whole building "Grain Warehouse".
1909 Sanborn - north section - "Hay & Grain Warehouse; south section rear - "Cooper Shop" front section "Ice House & Barrel Storage"
